Two Men Gambled Salary, One Million? Man's Safety Valve They Burn Them

—By Arthur Brisbane—

TWO MEN, three thousand miles apart, won by gambling on yesterday's Derby.

One, English, 54 years old, bought a ticket in the Calcutta sweepstakes, and drew the favorite, expected to win. If that horse had won, the holder of the ticket on the favorite would have made $600,000.

The wise owner of the favorite ticket sold it for $100,000, will invest at 5 per cent, and live happy ever afterward. He took a certainty, on $100,000.

And the horse on which he had the ticket lost. An outsider, Blenheim, won at odds of 18 to 1.

The Aga Khan, who owns Blenheim, is head of a great religious body in Asia. They send him a fortune every year, for the good of their souls. He spends it on racing, for the good of the British turf.

The other gambling winner is a Brooklyn youth, 18 years old. He drew the 18-to-1 winner, Blenheim, in a Canadian sweepstake, and is, TEMPORARILY, richer by $149,000.

A miracle MIGHT happen, the young winner of $149,000 MIGHT invest the money wisely, take care of it, enjoy prosperity.

The general rule is, "Once a gambler, always a gambler until the money gives out."

The pity is that such gambling news, which must be printed, starts thousands gambling. They do not hear of the tens of millions who gambled and lost.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co., Charles M. Schwab's creation, declined to answer questions about his salary. Lawyers asked: "Is your salary more than one million a year?"

Mr. Grace replied in substance: "None of your business."

Once the mention of a $1,000,000 salary would have shaken the stars in their courses, almost. Now it shakes nobody. Everything is a matter of percentage. If you earn five thousand a year for your employer, you are worth about $2500.

If you earn $5,000,000 a year, you are worth $250,000; if you earn $50,000,000 a year, you are worth $2,500,000.

A civilization that can afford to pay $250,000 a year salary for a few minutes' talk on the radio, can afford $1,000,000 for running a big steel concern, spread all over the country.

Mr. Grace is one of the ablest steel men living, and an able corporation manager.

The Mail correspondent thinks something should be done to make the Hindus respect their British emperor.

The fact that not very much is done, shows how wise the British are. Great Britain will let you TALK to your heart's content, if you don't ACT.

In Hyde Park, a few blocks from Buckingham Palace, you may say whatever you think about King George. Nobody will disturb you while you only talk.

A wise nation knows enough not to sit on the safety valve. Man's mouth is his safety valve.

Chicago's police suspect that gangsters, working toward greater crime perfection, have established a private crematory to burn the victims of their "rides," machine gun executions, etc.

Of late, gangsters "wanted" by other gangsters have disappeared, their corpses never found.

The latest fashion is to shoot your man and carry away the body in an automobile. The police say several "big shots" in the world's no of crime must have been cremated, since they can't be found.

Married only a year, a charming young woman, bringing suit for divorce against her rich husband at West Palm Beach, Fla., said the husband rang alarm clocks and cowbells, all over the house, until late in the morning.

The master in chancery called that extreme cruelty and divorced her. "A true settlement of half a million to a million dollars is under discussion." The husband, according to the annoyed wife, hid many alarm clocks in her room, arranged to go off every few minutes.

The rich, with no serious work on hand, are prone to strange forms of amusement.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, victorious in her second as in her first Florida campaign for Congress, defeats her man opponent

Cannon Bolts Quiz; in Contempt, Says Walsh

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., walked out on the Senate lobby committee today and his questioners decided to take no legal steps for the present to bring him back.

The committee will not meet again until next Wednesday, and meantime it expects neither to issue a subpoena nor begin contempt proceedings to punish the Southern Methodist leader for his refusal to testify about his anti-Smith campaign activities in 1928.

As he withdrew, unexcused, and followed by applause, hisses and laughter, Cannon flung back at the committee another challenge of its authority. He had appeared voluntarily, he said, had answered all the questions he considered proper and was through unless the senators chose to formally subpoena him.

Chairman Caraway, who agrees with Cannon that he should not be questioned about his leadership in the anti-Smith campaign, will return to Washington Tuesday. On the following day the full committee expects to make its decision.

After the adjournment Senator Walsh of Montana, the acting chairman, told newspaper men that he regarded Cannon as "in plain contempt of the Senate."

Although Cannon had appeared voluntarily, Walsh held that once

East Wind Routs Heat as One Victim Dies

Boston's old-time summer friend, the East wind, interrupted the heat wave today after one death and one prostration had accompanied a rapidly rising temperature.

The wind shifted into the East just before noon, as the mercury was touching 91 degrees, or four degrees above yesterday's reading at the same hour.

From 91 at 11 a. m. it dropped to 86 at 12 and 83 at 1 p. m. Yesterday at 11 a. m. the temperature was 87, at 12 noon was 85, or two degrees above today and at 1 p. m. was 88 or five degrees above today's 1 a. m. reading.

Until the east wind came it was thought today's temperature would at least equal the record for June 5, set up in 1919.

Between 1 p. m. and 2 p. m. the wind shifted again to the southeast but not until the mercury had touched 92 at 1:30. The shift in the wind sent the temperature up to 86 by 2 p. m. as compared with

Inc., service, had taken off for New York at 1 o'clock when the accident occurred.

It had gained an altitude of 30 feet when the right motor cut out and Pilot Charles O'Connor swung it into the harbor to avoid crashing on the mud flats.

As it struck the water the right wing was nearly torn off, leaving a large hole in the cabin fuselage.

Through this aperture mostof the passengers crawled to safety or were rescued by scores of volunteers who swam or sped to the scene in boats.

The big ship crashed, her right wing trailing, in about 15 feet of water. 75 feet from shore and 150 feet from the airport's south bulkhead. .It's wheels rested on the bottom, with wings and fuselage showing, but the cabin was submerged.

Thoreson, one of the first to escape through the hole created by the tearing of the right wing, started to swim to shore, but went down. His body was recovered by Guy Ham, pilot at the airport, and doctors worked over him for two hours on the mud flats, using a pulmotor to no avail. ... .

First reports were that four of the occupants of the plane had been killed.

Hurried calls were sent to the army posts, to the police and hospitals, and several ambulances responded.

The rescued as fast as brought ashore, were rushed to the hospital before their names could be learned and in a checkup with the passenger list four names remained unaccounted for. Later checking showed all accounted for at the hospital in East Boston.

Pilot Charles O'Connor at the Relief Station, while under treatment for his injuries, said that the right motor had gone dead and that he in vain tried to turn the craft back to the port.

He managed to get from the cockpit when the ship struck, and hauled two passengers onto the wings. Others, he said, got out of the plane in some sort of fashion, he knew not how, and were swimming about.

O'Connor's co-pilot, Val Chick, of Boston, corroborated his explanation of the accident.

De Vaulchier, who is a French aviator, agreed with officials and with the plane pilots that the accident was caused by the right motor running dead.

Despite his cuts and bruises, De Vaulchier put in a telephone call to his wife in New York to assure her he had escaped unhurt.

One of the heroes of the disaster was Major Claude M. Cummings, flight surgeon of the United States Army.

Major Cummings was in his office at the edge of the flying field when the accident occurred. He heard the shouts of those about the airport and rushed to the shore where he aided in directing rescue operation.

The Major, when he saw that passengers on the plane were near death from submersion, telephoned the East Boston Relief Hospital for a pulmotor and this was used on the victims of the accident as they were pulled ashore.

Another hero of the crash was Kenneth Hurley, aviation mechanic employed by the East Coast Aircraft Corp. Hurley's employer, H. E. Wallis, service manager of the corporation, was also aboard the machine as it dropped into the sea.

Without an instant's hesitation, Hurley, fully clad, leaped into the sea and swam to the machine. As he reached the craft he found his employe floundering about in the water and he helped him to reach a place on the wing of the plane.

Mrs. Charles A. Jacobson of Long Island, N. Y., was the least seriously injured of the passengers, and at the hospital had recovered her composure. She did not care, however, to comment on the accident, giving her entire attention to her husband, who was considerably bruised and cut.

"Gus" Ham, one of the pilots of the airport, was one of the heroes. He was one of the first to notice the plane drop and shouted as he ran toward the southern end of the field. He was joined by pilots, clerks and others. Ropes, boats and other equipment were dragged along.

Ham and his companions plunged into the water and swam out the 75 feet to the plane, which was resting on the bottom in about 15 feet of water. They assisted some of the passengers from the cabin, while they also assisted others floundering about in the water. HAD JUST TAKEN OFF

The accident happened just after the plane had taken off at 1 p. m. Conditions seemed ideal, and as the craft took the air the passengers were waving to friends on the field.

Field pilots who were watching the plane as she took off saw her suddenly attempt to head back and seemed trouble, although they believed that the ability of both O'Connor and Chick would bring her to a safe landing.

The ship did not, however, seem to respond to attempt to steer her and suddenly settled down, evenly at first, then with a bump as she hit water.

ON LIST BY MISTAKE.

J. H. Morrison, one of the passengers, is vice-president of the Warren Foundry & Type Co., New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Jacobson are the parents-in-law of Allan Moore, treasurer of the United States Trust Co., New York.

J. F. Gillespie, manager of Paul Whiteman, was at first reported as among the passengers, but at the Ritz Carlton Hotel it was learned that he had assigned Shapiro, his assistant, to make a business trip to New York in his stead. He, Shapiro and Whiteman have been stopping at the Ritz Carlton and the ticket was taken out in Gillespie's name.

Horace S. Ford, jr., one of the passengers, is a Technology student and the son of the M. I. T. bursar, whose home is at 1909 Beacon st., Brookline.

He was en route to New York to make arrangements for the registration of alumni at the annual meeting soon to be held in Boston.

Val R. Chick for several years has been one of New England's most noted airmen. For a time he was the owner and operator of the Sunset Airways which operated from the East Boston airport.

Chick, at the time of operating this air-line, lived in Gloucester and he commuted by plane daily between Boston and Gloucester. In December, 1929, Chick gained national prominence when he flew from Boston to Miami, Fla. in his OX. Challenger plane.

Coast Guard boats arrived on the scene within a few minutes and assisted airport attaches in rescuing the passengers and pilots. A number of passengers were taken through a hole in the side of the cabin fuselage.

First Serious Accident on Passenger Line

Today's was the first serious accident of the Boston-New York passenger service inaugurated in 1927 by the Colonial Air Transport, Inc.

Planes of the company have flown hundreds of thousands of miles without a fatality.

Trial service was begun in April 1, 1927, in an effort to make Bostonians air-minded. It operated for two weeks. On May 27 of the same year regularly daily scheduled flights were begun. The public was not then ready to adopt air travel, however, and the schedule was suspended.

In April of last year regular daily flights, two each day, were begun and have since continued without interruption except by weather conditions.

Cannon's Bolt Is Contempt of Senate, Says Walsh

having placed himself under committee jurisdiction, he could not withdraw until excused.

The Montanan added there might be doubt as to the committee's authority to inquire into Cannon's political activities, but there was no doubt the withdrawal today amounted to contempt.

In further defying the Senate committee, Cannon stalked out of the room after appearing only long enough to read a statement again attacking the committee's authority. It was his third appearance before the investigators and it marked the first time that the committee had mustered a legal quorum for the examination of the recalcitrant witness.

Walsh warned Cannon that he was not excused, and that his case would be dealt with later.

With no witness before it, the committee proceeded to put into the record various reports relating to the anti-Smith campaign. One report listed as loans from Bishop Cannon $2000, given in four instalments of $500 each during July and August of 1928.

FUNDS NOT REPORTED

Disbursements included several payments to the bishop for traveling expenses and repayment of loans.

"In none of these reports does there appear any record of receipts of any money from Mr. Jameson," observed Walsh.

Jameson testified he contributed $65,200 to Cannon for the anti-Smith campaign. The report to Congress listed receipts of $17,000.

Cannon has explained that he did not report the remaining $48,200 because it was used in the Virginia state campaign.

After reading from financial records of the anti-Smith committee, Walsh remarked also there was no mention of the $5000 paid by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church to Cannon for distributing copies of his speech on "Prohibition Repeal Unthinkable."

The committee then adjourned until Wednesday. Carraway is expected back on Tuesday.

Cannon's refusal on two successive days to answer questions has presented the committee with a poser. The members are divided on the question of prosecuting him for contempt.

Today, at the outset of the hearing, the bishop presented his refusal to cover any and all questions which might be asked while he remained in his status of voluntary witness.

Then, amid applause and hisses from the spectators, he gathered up the crutch upon which he has leaned in entering and moving about the committee room, and walked away.

"You take your own course, but we have not excused you," Senator Walsh of Montana called after him. "Senator Blaine wishes to question you."

IN OPEN DEFIANCE

Moving away as Blaine started talking, the bishop said over his shoulder:

"I will be at my office if the committe wishes to subpoena me.

"In view of the nature of the questions asked me by the committee on yesterday morning concerning the Asheville conference, its originators, its participants, its officers, its methods, its contributions, etc., and the further questions asked me concerning the activities of the anti-Smith Democrats of Virginia and specially concerning the activities of myself as one of the two citizens calling the Asheville conference, and as the chairman of the headquarters committee of that organization, and as the treasurer of the anti-Smith Democrats, and furthermore in view of the fact that no such investigation has been instituted by the committee of the activities of other organizations or committees opposing or favoring the Tammany candidate in 1928, not even of the Smith-for-President colored league or the Smith independent organization committee, both supported entirely by funds from the National Democratic committee, and because I consider this to be an effort to single out and hold up to the country the anti-Smith Democrats, and myself in particular, as the only persons whose activities in the campaign in 1928 require investigation, and because I believe the proposed investigation to be a part of the effort for many months of set and Roman Catholic elements and of those who worship party regularity to prevent a recurrence of the Asheville conference in 1932, I resent to the limit the implications and the purpose of this action.

"In view of these things, I must respectfully state that, having answered all questions addressed to me by the committee on which I have refused to appear as a witness, I shall now withdraw as a voluntary witness.

"If the committee desires to subpoena me that is its right."

Just as the bishop left the room, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, arrived. His presence gave the committee a quorum. There are five members and three make a quorum.

Borah joined in the laughter as he took his seat and looked across at the vacant witness chair.

Seville, Spain, June 5 (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin completing the first stage of her return to Friedrichshafen from the United States, landed at the Seville Airdrome at 5:04 p. m. (12:04 p. m. E. S. T.).

The Graf, after fighting unfavorable weather conditions off the European Coast, arrived over Seville at 3:20 p. m. (10:20 a. m. eastern standard time). She had been expected here early this morning, but heavy rains and winds had forced her to divert from a straight course from the Azores and to swing to the south so that she made her landfall, just south of Lisbon, Portugal, about 55 hours out from Lakehurst, N. J. The flight to Seville took 39 hours, 8 minutes.

With her arrival over Seville, the Graf had completed about 16,000 miles of her 18,000-mile four-continental journey which started on May 18.

HULTMAN AIMS TO PROMOTE YOUNG COPS

Plans to Replace Older Officials With Deserving Juniors in Shakeups

Police Commissioner Hultman plans to replace Boston's veteran captains, nine of whom he ordered transferred last night, with young men, he revealed today.

"I hope in the future to bring up the young blood and elevate younger men to important positions," said the new commissioner. "Eventually I hope to see men made police captains around the age of 35 or 40, whereas in the past the age has been between 45 and 50."

He said there should be no uneasiness regarding the shifts ordered.

"That is simply my own policy to make better policemen out of them. I have no immediate plans in mind for making any other changes at the present time."

Commissioner Hultman disclosed that he has conferred with Civil Service Commissioner Elliot H. Goodwin regarding the system of promotion in the department and a means for raising younger men to important posts.

In a general order this morning he commanded all captains to see that patrolmen arrested all drunks observed on the streets. This is not to increase the total of arrests, but as an accident prevention move, he said, pointing out that a report of the governor's committee on streets and highways found that 40 per cent of the pedestrians injured or killed by automobiles were struck after they had been drinking.

He ordered that all drivers of cars who have been drinking shall be arrested and the car seized except in cases where there is an occupant of such car entirely sober and capable of driving, when the arresting officer may use his own discretion about allowing the sober occupant to drive the car away.

The transferred captains are:

Arthur L. McConnell, sent from the Hanover st. station to Dudley st.

Herbert W. Goodwin, transferred from Lagrange st. to Jamaica Plain.

John J. Mullen, changed from East Dedham st. to Roxbury Crossing.

Jeremiah G. Gallivan, sent from Roxbury Crossing to Lagrange st.

Jeremiah E. Mosher, transferred from Jamaica Plain to Back Bay.

John M. Anderson, shifted from Back Bay to Blackstone st.

There was a bit of unkind sentiment expressed when Capt. John M. Anderson of Back Bay station was shifted to his men at roll call this morning.

"If I had my way about it I'd take this whole gang with me down to my new command at Station 5," he said.

"I am not sorry to leave this station, but I am sorry to leave you men."

HEAT ENDS AS ONE DIES

90 yesterday at the same hour.

At 2 p. m. the mercury reading had fallen off one degree again to 85, in comparison with 92 degrees registered at the same hour yesterday.

Michael Buckley, 33, of 37 Yosman st., Roxbury, was taken by friends to City hospital after collapsing from heat. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

The prostration victim was an unidentified woman who collapsed in a trolley car in the Boylston st. subway.

Women and the car crew removed her from the trolley and placed her on a bench in the Arlington station. There was no gasp around and when a ticket collector was appealed to, she telephoned a report to Park st. station.

Meanwhile, however, a Boston American reporter, alighting from another car and directly above the woman, telephoned police and an ambulance was sent to the subway station.

Relief from the heat wave will come some time tomorrow, according to the Weather Man. He gave out the following official forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight, Friday partly cloudy with showers and cooler. Moderate southwest winds.

At 1 a. m. today the mercury was at 77 degrees, four degrees higher than at 1 a. m. yesterday.

From 77 it dropped to a minimum of 71 degrees at 6 a. m., but still was three degrees above the same hour's reading yesterday. In the next three hours the reading advanced nine degrees to 80.

Yesterday, with a high mark of 94 degrees, was the second hottest day of the year, both as regards maximum and the day's average.

The mercury climbed to 95 on May 7 with a day's average of 85, while yesterday's average was 80 degrees. In the first nine hours of today, the average was a fraction higher than 75 degrees.

Today there was another exodus to beaches, by train, trolley, boat and automobile, with traffic reported as exceptionally heavy.

TWO DEATHS AS TONG WAR FLARES

Hub Street Is Deserted After Volley Is Fired on a Hip Sing Group by Rivals

Guns and hatchets of the Chinese Tongs took two lives today as war opened in Boston, New York, Chicago and Newark, N.J.

Two were injured in Boston as members of the On Leong tong fired seven shots into a group of 25 Hip Sings in Hudson st., throwing all Chinatown into a panic.

In New York a member of the Hip Sings was shot six times and killed, and in Newark a laundryman, whose tong connections were unknown, was found slain with a hatchet buried in his skull.

At Chicago a group of celestials raked Chinatown with a machine gun and pistols in an unsuccessful effort to assassinate the leader of the Chin Oak Tin tong.

The outbreak marked the end of a long truce between the secret organizations of the celestials and the beginning, police fear, of the most relentless of many wars among them.

All cities having large Chinese districts were warned by Boston authorities to be on guard against certain attempts at reprisal.

An extra detail of police will be scattered through Boston's Chinatown at dusk today to remain throughout the night, prepared for another outbreak.

The Boston outbreak followed the Chicago shooting and occurred at about the same hour as the slaying in New York.

Twenty-five Hip Sings were gathered in front of their tong headquarters at 49 Hudson st., having just held a meeting, when four members of the On Leong tong rushed them Two of the On Leongs drew revolvers and began firing.

At least seven shots were fired and perhaps more. Chinatown was thrown into an uproar. Chinese merchants seated outside their shops dived for cover and the Hip Sings scattered in all directions.

Two bullets crashed through a window at 71 Tyler st. Wong Hung, 16, and Yee Bing, 45, both Hudson st. laundrymen and members of the Hip Sings, fell down the flight of concrete stairs leading to tong headquarters.

Following the shooting the La Grange st. station was swamped with telephone calls. Patrol wagons and private machines rushed officers to the scene. At the Hip Sing quarters they found the injured men and took them to City Hospital. They were treated for cuts and bruises and were later discharged.

After the shooting the On Leong tongsmen escaped. Patrolmen Richard Fay and Daniel Hooley of the Lagrange st. station later found two 38-caliber revolvers in Hudson st. not far from the scene of the shooting.

On information furnished by the Hip Sing tong, warrants were issued for Chin Win, of Beach st., charging him with assault with intent to kill.

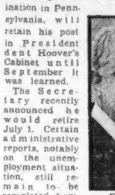
The Secretary recently announced he would retire July 1. Certain administrative reports, notably on the unemployment situation, still remain to be completed, however, and the President has granted Davis a 60 day continuance.



Sec. Davis

One of the most pressing considerations for the President's action in continuing Secretary Davis in office is the inability of the President and labor leaders to agree on a successor.

'JIMMIE' AND 'BETSY' ROOSEVELT ON HONEYMOON NEAR BAR HARBOR

$500,000 IN GIFTS UNDER GUARD

New York Governor's Son and Bride Emulate Lindberghs in Going to Maine

James Roosevelt, son of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and his radiant bride, the former Miss Betsy Cushing, daughter of Dr. Harvey Cushing, eminent surgeon, today were reported honeymooning near Bar Harbor, Me.

The happy couple, married in St. Paul's Church, Brookline, late yesterday before a brilliant throng of 700 representatives of New England and New York society and with a thousand sightseers milling in the heat of 94 degrees outside, eluded those at the wedding reception in the Cushing mansion last evening.

Several hours later, however, they were discovered at the summer home of Dr. Cushing at Little Boar's Head, N. H. Still later they motored to Portsmouth, N. H., and boarded the St. John express en route to Bar Harbor.

"Jimmie" and "Betsy," in choosing the rugged seacoast of the Pine Tree State to start their honeymoon, followed in the footsteps of another prominent young couple—"Charles" and "Anne," Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

$500,000 IN GIFTS.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt left behind them half a million dollars' worth of wedding gifts, which were under guard of no less than 25 private detectives. These gifts had come from all parts of the world and many of them are rare pieces. There are so many that they overflow the Cushing home and the gymnasium in the barn had to be cleared for the wonderful display of wedding gifts.

The newlyweds will have an opportunity within a week to look over their gifts for the bridegroom, a Harvard University senior, must return to college to receive his degree. After this the young couple will go to Europe for an extended honeymoon. They will be "at home" in Cambridge on September 15.

Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt were at Groton today en route to Albany, visiting their two sons in school there. They plan to return to Cambridge for their son's commencement exercises.

BRIDE SHY OF CAMERA.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt were an engaging pair as they marched to the altar to the strains of the wedding march from the organ in the church, banked with lillies and cedars. Roosevelt, tall and blond, towered a foot above his bride, a slender slip of a girl with brown hair and blue eyes.

She was charming in her gown of silver metal cloth. She was a bit camera shy on leaving the church, but was prevailed upon by her husband to stop briefly before the still and motion picture cameras.

The ceremony took place at 3:30. The church was thronged with guests representing the elect in society circles in Boston and New York.

Outside the church and the Cushing home an expectant crowd filled the streets, anxious to catch at least a fleeting glimpse of the bride and groom. A friendly cheer from the onlookers greeted the pair as they left the church.

Among the notable guests were Mrs. Hugh D. Scott, Mrs. Randolph F. Tucker and daughter, Mrs. Hamilton Warren, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Parker, Miss Isabella Grandin, Miss Nancy Adams and Miss Agnes Murchie.

Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, daughter of Governor and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and her husband were also among the fashionably dressed crowd forming part of the wedding attendants.

1000 AT RECEPTION.

Following the ceremony about 1000 guests went to the Cushing home at 305 Walnut st. for the reception. Mr. Roosevelt and his bride, with other members of the family, stood in a large bay window in the living room to receive guests. Refreshments were served on the lawn and from a large tent at the side of the house floated the music of Ruby Newman's dance orchestra.

An amusing incident occurred after the wedding. The crowd outside the church thought ex-Gov. "Al" Smith was seen coming out. A great cheer went up. The man was "Al's" "double" — Thomas Lynch, state tax commissioner of the Empire State.

About this time also, Tom Mason, Harvard athlete, and a group of young Roosevelt's classmates at Harvard departed in an old-fashioned horse-drawn victoria, shaded from the late afternoon sun by white and blue striped umbrellas.

Worcester's "Good Times" News Pleases Roosevelt

Worcester, June 5 (AP)—"I'm only the governor of New York," said Gov. Roosevelt at Union Station today waiting for an Albany train. "I'm not here to discuss national issues," he said when asked an opinion on the presidential campaign in 1932.

"How is the unemployment situation here?" he asked.

When told it showed a slight improvement, he replied:

"Good! New York is showing improvement also."

The governor, with Mrs. Roosevelt and a body guard, had motored to Worcester from Groton, where they have two sons at school, and where they stayed overnight.

TARIFF BACK IN CONFERENCE 4TH TIME

Curtis Upholds a Democratic Point of Order on the Rate Provisions

Washington, June 5 (AP)—The tariff bill was returned to conference today for the fourth time when Vice-President Curtis upheld a Democratic point of order against its rate provisions.

Curtis upheld the contention that the conferees exceeded their authority in rewriting the duties on watch jewels, rayon, specialty cheese, and a section providing for free entry of cattle for pasturage purposes.

Senate conferees immediately were reappointed and Chairman Smoot of the finance committee expressed the hope that the House would reappoint its managers during the day so the bill could be brought back to the Senate floor by Monday.

New York, June 5 (AP)—The filing of a suit for divorce by Mrs. Anna Foley Harriman against John Harriman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman and a nephew of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, became known today. She charges misconduct.

Flier Takes Judge Up in Plane to Prove Innocence

New York, June 5 (AP)—Henry Ramdell, Brooklyn aviator, hired a plane today to take a magistrate up for a ride and try to prove that if he did hit a motorboat with his seaplane last year he was not to blame.

Last September a plane struck a motorboat in Jamaica Bay and a man in the boat was killed. Ramdell was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter although he said he had no knowledge of hitting a boat. Green paint scraped off on the boat in the collision was said by city chemists to be the same as that on Ramdell's plane.

Tomorrow Ramdell's case comes up before Magistrate Marvin and so Ramdell arranged to take Marvin and a representative of the district attorney's office up today to show them how it might have happened without any knowledge on his part.

Ruth Hanna Sees U. S. Peril in World Court

Washington, June 5 (US)—Solemn warning that this nation will "not permit itself to become involved in the political quarrels of other nations," has been given to an international audience by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick.

In a radio address last night over a national broadcasting company chain, rebroadcast by the British Broadcasting Co., Mrs. McCormick rededicated herself to the anti-League of Nations and anti-League Court policy which recently won her a senatorial nomination in Illinois.

PART OF LEAGUE

Emphasizing that the court is part of the league, Mrs. McCormick made it plain that all of Europe recognizes that relationship, and that it is denied only by proponents of the court in this country. She said:

"Denial of direct relationship between the league and the court may surprise our European friends, but the denial is made on this side of the Atlantic every time the issue of our adhering to the court arises."

Pointing out that the United States has "definitely and repeatedly declined proposals to join the league," Mrs. McCormick added:

"Our men and women feel that we can best serve ourselves and the rest of the world without becoming a part of that alliance. At the same time it is cheerfully conceded that other nations have every right to make their decision to join the league, and the league's court, just as we insist upon our right to remain out of them."

WOMEN INTERESTED

Declaring that America's millions of women have a personal interest in the peaceful and just settlements of our disputes with other nations, Mrs. McCormick continued:

"It has been the policy of our government since its foundation to keep our contracts with other nations, to maintain peace with other nations, where it can be done with honor, and, as a means of preserving peace, we have followed the tradition of not permitting ourselves to become involved in the political quarrels of other countries.

"This is a good rule to follow in the neighborhood in which we establish our individual homes, and it is equally sound with relation to minding our own business in international affairs."

TROUBLES AT HOME

This nation has many serious domestic problems that demand its attention without going to Europe for work to do, Mrs. McCormick emphasized, saying:

"A majority of American women have felt, I believe, that political and economic problems of the United States should have attention before we undertake to assist in stabilizing economic, political and military conditions in countries overseas.

"We now have in America a serious unemployment situation. We have an agricultural crisis affecting 30,000,000 farm people. We have been trying for 15 months to pass a tariff bill of vital consequence to American farming, manufacturing and labor.

"We have a delicate immigration problem to handle, just as the British dominions have. No controversy since the Civil War has so agitated the country as the present debate over prohibition.

"Our courts are congested, our prisons are overcrowded. A question of law enforcement affecting the Constitution of our country is at issue."

All women in America hold world peace "as a sacred consideration" only "disagreeing as to methods and politics," she said.

START SUMMER AIR SCHEDULE TO NEW YORK

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

To meet the increasing demand for airplane service between Boston and New York, Colonial Air Transport today starts the new summer schedule of four planes each way every day.

This announcement, made by B. Anthony Pollet, general traffic manager of all the Colonial Airways, comes right on the heels of the increase in schedule announced by New England and Western Air Transport. The New England lines have been spread out so that two trips per day to New York are offered, with stops at Springfield, where connections may be made with the planes for Albany.

Colonial has been considering the inauguration of the four-a-day schedule for some time. The need of some such change has been felt when three and sometimes four sections were sent out to New York. Pollet visited Boston recently to confer with Waldo Brown, traffic manager on this end of the line. At a meeting of the officials of American Airways, the operating company of the Aviation Corp. held early this week, it was decided to put the fourth ship into operation.

This morning, at 8 o'clock, the first ship left for New York, and the remainder of the trips started at 10:30 a. m., 1 and 4:30 p. m. On the old three-a-day schedule the morning and afternoon planes left on the same times. The new schedule cancels the noon plane and runs two ships before and after noon.

From New York planes leave for Boston at 9 a. m., 12:30, 3 and 8:30 p. m.

Four Ford tri-motored planes, seating 13 passengers and two pilots, are the regular ships, backed up by Sikorsky amphibions, seating eight passengers, and Fairchild cabin monoplanes, seating five passengers. These last two types of planes will be used for double sections and special trips. The fare remains the same.

Cambridge Girl Tells Miss Davies Old Styles Were for Olden Times

Jamaica Plain Writer Says World Is Not Going Back to "Gay Nineties"

Hollywood, Cal., June 4—The styles of the gay '90s were best suited for the women of that period, the women who spent their time at home, in their leisure doing fancy work and waiting for the day when some man would come and take them and place them in homes of their own.

This was the view expressed by Miss Margaret E. Harney of 218 Concord ave., Cambridge, Mass., in a letter in the Marion Davies style contest.

Other letters follow:

Although some do not realize it yet, the world goes round and round, always in the same direction, never turning back, and its inhabitants are going with it, progressing with every movement and not receding and returning to the styles of the "gay '90s."

Mrs. Frances Gately,
98 St. Rose st.,
Jamaica Plain, Mass.

The styles of the '90s will not return and the styles of 1930 will not remain. Feminine styles, like other events in history, will repeat themselves periodically in modernized forms.

E. E. Sullivan,
85 Broad st.,
Providence, R. I.

Will the present day styles remain?

This depends entirely with us women. Many a girl has braved severe punishment of an irate unforgivable parent for the loss of her shorn locks. Therefore, if the same determination were used to retain, as was used to attain, the short skirt and bobbed hair would doubtless remain.

Miss Emma Orth,
106 17th st.,
College Point, N. Y.

There is a happy solution as to long and short skirts; namely, not too long and not too short. It is my opinion ladies should ask themselves the question, "What would my mother decide on." I think, ladies, your mother would say, "Don't ape after others, but have a good common sense view yourself." I will venture that I think mother's choice would be the ordinary shoe top dress as the neatest and nicest and most modest.

Harry C. Jackson,
215 West 57th st.,
New York City, N. Y.

Skirts dragged shamelessly in the dust, and many a fatigued caterpillar obtained a breathing spell while he rode part way home to a waiting wife.

Clarence Edward Hefler,

Flatbush, Brooklyn.

Blushing even as we write, we well remember the days, when we removed the high-laced boots or buttoned shoes and in the privacy of our room contemplated our shapely legs and well-turned ankles and wondered what certain people would say if they saw these treasures revealed to the world. How we longed to run out in our starched umbrella unmentionables. Just to be free! Then our enslaved minds clicked and our cheeks registered a modest blush of shame.

What did men know of shapely beauty in those days located in the age of innocence? No wonder the misguided males turned to the burlesque show with its beer and brawn. After all, thgrall!; is solely based on custom and habit generally. Style does not affect it one way or another and whatever is beautiful to the eye is moral and decent. Men were more greatly stirred by what those women concealed than the men of today are by what women of the present reveal.

The real argument about short dresses is that too many old women wear their dresses short and it spoils the styles for the young girls, or the ones who do look nice in the styles.

There is nothing as beautiful and gloriously divine as womanhood, and what is becoming of all that beauty with grandmother and mother clipping their tresses, say nothing of their dresses, in an effort to appear "permanently 16?"

U. S. AND STATES TO COLLECT ON DERBY PRIZES

Of course they'll grin and bear it, but New Englanders who won a total of $85,121 in the Canadian sweepstakes on the English Derby must pay an income tax on their winnings to the state and federal governments.

Federal agents in all New England states and department executives of those having a state tax were busy today checking up on the reports of winnings.

R. J. Flynn of Portland, Me., credited with winning $24,877, is due to pay Uncle Sam about $736 of that for his good fortune.

The others, Norman F. Bell of Brookline, Mrs. Rose Heon, Mrs. Lillian Gagnon, Miss Fannie Halloran of Westfield, Gertrude R. Painter of Milford, Ct., and Paul Levondovsky of Derry, N. H., must pay federal tax of about $130 each because they won $71077.71 each.

The eagle eyes of the tax agents are surveying the field, notes are being made, and it behooves the winners to make declaration in their tax returns for 1930 income.

MAYOR LOSES IN DIPLOMA TILT IN MALDEN

Graduates of Malden high school and Lincoln junior high school, Malden, will receive their diplomas on June 25 from school committee members, Mayor William A. Hastings having been denied the privilege.

The row inside its own membership and between itself and the mayor ended today with assignment of Mrs. H. H. Hammond, a member of the board, to present the high school diplomas, and of Harold H. Harding, committeeman, to present diplomas at the junior high school.

Harding had previously declined to make the senior high school presentations, declaring that Mayor Hastings should be asked first.

Until a few years ago it was customary for the mayor to present the high school diplomas. Then a controversy occurred and until last February they were presented by a member of the school board. The mayor was then asked and he presented the diplomas.

A few days ago the board refused to consider the mayor on the ground that he had made the February presentations.

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

New England people have their attention centered today upon the experiment scheduled for mid-afternoon, when the North German Lloyd liner Bremen will speed an airmail plane from some 600 miles at sea.

If this attempt is successful, it means much for Boston, according to the Port Authority which is active in co-operating with Christopher DeGroot of the Boston office of the line. The plane was to take off at noon and land in the harbor at 3 o'clock.

Today Boston is to have a tremendously important opportunity to show what can be done. If the air mail is handled promptly, Boston is almost certain to become the great American air terminal for European liners.

Boston long has boasted the slogan of: "Our port is one day nearer Europe than New York."

The Boston American suggests a new one: "By using plane-to-shore facilities to and from Boston, passengers and mail can be forwarded to the middle west before the liner docks in New York."

Sea Going Chronicle

Seamen singing up for cruises here yesterday included: For Dutch West Indies, Richard Arnold of Dorchester, Patrick J. Pagliuca of Chelsea, Frank A. Herne of Charlestown, Stephen Moran of Boston.

For Texas: Thomas F. Colbert of East Boston, Adam R. Dalski of Stamford, Ct., Charles G. Allen of Chelsea, John Hallamore of Boston and Adam Sherman of Malden.

Safety Notes

Rule No. 30 of the series of marine safety code committee regulations, is one of the most important of all.

"When the work does not required the use of the hand cargo hook, a good precaution is to get it away from your person by putting it away in some safe place. Do not lay it down where it may be stepped upon or sat upon, and do not hang it up where vibration may shake it down."

An examinition of last year's accidents in Boston reveals that a total of 15 men were injured by hand tools.

Wedding Bells

Today's Who's Who

Samuel Silverman, corporation counsel for Boston, today occupies the spotlight of the daily "Who's Who in the Harbor."

(Wald Photo)
Samuel Silverman

This former legislator from the South End has come into harbor prominence due to his leadership of the city's fight to reduce the differentials which affect Boston shipping. He is counsel for the City of Boston and for the port authority in these cases pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Silverman has lived on the waterfront since early boyhood, and has two hobbies. His first is the collection of books by and about Disraeli, and his collection is rated one of the finest in New England.

Fishing is the other hobby. When in Maine recently he played a prank on his fellow fishermen. The man whose fish weighed the heaviest each day was to be host that night. Sammy won six days in a row, although his catches were smaller. Someone finally cut open one fish and learned that Silverman had concealed heavy lead sinkers inside.

Montana Woman Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in energy and vigor.

Gain in charm and vivaciousness.

Gain a healthy complexion and have eyes that sparkle with buoyant health.

And at insignificant cost—isn't it time to use common sense?

Please read this letter carefully: "Gentlemen: I first saw your advertisement in a Billings, Montana, paper and decided to try Kruschen Salts.

I was the first to purchase a bottle in Billings.

I started taking them every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet, but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 229 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to reduce my weight.

I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many of my friends, in fact, a number of them taking Kruschen Salts.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drugstore in America.

London, June 5 (AP)—First steps toward organization of domestic workers—maid servants, cooks and butlers—were taken at today's final meeting of the National Conference of Labor Women.

Trade union organizers and domestics secured the unanimous vote of the conference to send out 1000 questionnaires to determine how they feel in regard to a domestic service charter.

Only One Jobless of Wenham's 1119

Wenham, June 5—Boosters in this town believe that they have a real claim to fame. Official 1930 census figures show that out of a population of 1119 there is only one person "without a job, able to work and looking for a job."

Although farming is listed as the principal occupation, only 45 farms were found by the census enumerators.

Drug Men Challenge Ban on Wine Tonic

San Francisco, June 5 (AP)—Authority of Prohibition Administrator William G. Walker to withhold permits for manufacture of wine tonic was challenged in an action on file here today in Federal District Court on behalf of the Sterling Pharmacal Co.

Morrow Boomed for President

Trenton, N. J., June 5 (AP)—A presidential boom for Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey, has been launched here.

With Mr. Morrow occupying a seat on the platform at a political rally last night, Edward C. Stokes, former governor of New Jersey, and Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, advanced his name as a White House possibility.

Mr. Morrow thanked Mr. Stokes and Dr. Hibben for their complimentary statements, which, he said, left him "almost speechless."

Letters From American Readers

Trainmen, Please Note Women's Emancipation

Editor Boston American:

There was a time when all women had to be helped in alighting from the platform of a railroad coach, when arriving at a station. With short skirts, that time has passed.

It is amusing to see trainmen helping flappers off the platform of coaches with the very short skirts. They now make a flying leap from the top step down to the waiting platform.

The habit clings, notwithstanding changes in styles of dress. Of course, this does not apply to the aged or crippled, but it does have no meaning for these athletic girls from Wellesley College alighting from platforms at the Huntington ave. station.

I am not arguing against this old habit of helping people off trains, but the privilege of wearing a short skirt should certainly take the romantic touch out of such incidents. Girls, take a leap these days from platforms. Prove the convenience of a short skirt.

Here Are Some Thoughts on Lobbyists

Editor Boston American:

Why all this noise about being a lobbyist? I read it in the papers. The lobbyist represents special interests backed by vast wealth and is regarded with peculiar respect.

It may be that the man or woman who represents nothing more than social welfare movements is viewed with irritating and troublesome disgust.

It depends somewhat on how you use this gift, for it may be a badge of honor or a stigma of shame. It takes more than the ordinary person to be a good lobbyist. A bishop ought to be a good lobbyist. He has good administrative powers or he wouldn't be bishop. See the point?

I hope that they will apply the soft pedal about being this sort of a creature. A lobbyist stirs up sediments in many things that otherwise would be allowed to seethe at the bottom.

There is nothing like agitation. That's what a lobbyist is doing when he's acting in true form. He's an agitator, but he makes little or no noise. He works overtime.

Tells of Something to Squawk About

Editor Boston American:

One letter writer asks for opinion on the question of "jazz at meals."

In the old days it used to be, eating soup with crackers furnished music in plenty, some kind of sinker-pation, so to speak.

But lately in some suburban grubjoints one finds listed among improvements the fact that soup is as a rule never served. As a compensation, guests are given opportunity to drop a nickel in a slot for canned noise from a graphonbowler. And seven out of eight records are jazz.

Self-service has extended to the automatic noiseboxes. One could not legally blame the manager of the joint, all the while it seems that some or other guest is ever there with the nickel. Old-fashioned people may still prefer soup to jazz. But what can they do about it?

The writer mentioned a whole band playing. In that case there must be more than soup to make up for; maybe the kind of soup served under the name of coffee.

In some restaurant of the future it probably won't be necessary to order food at all. There'll be a cover charge. And all one will have to do is just listen in when the band is jamming it to the tune of, for inst., "chicken salad made with tuny fish."

And maybe "Nellie won't leave home."

Praises Hearst Papers for Reform Work

Editor Boston American:

Mr. Hearst has always been a man for humanity and I believe one of the best citizens this country has or ever did have. He is a remarkable man because he uses his money, time and intelligence for the nation as well as to make money and I shall do in all of my lectures everything in my power to bring about a greater circulation of the paper in order that we may do more good by having more people read the paper.

Intelligence is what we need in order to have humanity and that is what Mr. Hearst is trying to bring about through his great system of newspapers. This will produce good citizens, better homes, charity and love is all of them and that is what we need to have a better nation.

I am going to visit all of the states and state prisons and I hope that I will have the same co-operation throughout all of my lectures and visits to the various states.

Now, Who's Boss? Woman Tells

Editor Boston American:

Husbands are not bossing these days!

Since when, I ask? This piece of news was blazoned before our eyes one day this week in a Boston daily.

It was a professor of B. U. that started this. There's not a word of truth in it. It is my humble, undivided opinion that men were never so bossy as they are today. There is no term in the English language that appeals to the male brain so tenaciously as this word "boss."

Probably some of your readers can call to mind that Bostonian who left his fortune to his wife on condition that she should marry because, said he: "I want to have someone else find out how hard she is to live with."

Why, she was one of the meekest creatures that ever lived! But she would not be sat upon. She would not be bossed. I don't blame her. I don't blame any woman in these days for standing up for her rights in the family life. But to return to what I wrote at the beginning of this letter. It is not so that men have given up bossing. Every woman with her eyes open knows this. These professors make me weary.

MRS. T. K. L. LEVINGTON.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

There has been much that was true in bygone years in the comments of newspaper and magazine writers with reference to the college senior "looking for a job"—sometimes hopelessly and almost always timidly.

I cannot speak for all colleges, but I know that at many of them, and particularly at Lafayette, much progress has been made in a solution of the employment problem that is not often reflected in current editorial comment.

Briefly, up to and including May 31 of this year, one week before graduation, despite a general employment depression throughout the country, a total of 325 offers of employment have been made to the members of the senior class who registered for positions. By graduation day virtually every one of the 120 seniors registered will have been offered employment.

Pomp Reigns at Cushing Wedding

Picturesque Scenes Feature Brookline Ceremony and Reception

THE NUPTIAL KNOT has been tied and Betsey and Jimmie, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, are on their honeymoon way for a little rest and quiet. It is well to bring an end to the series of luncheons, showers and dinners which have been given for this popular pair. June will see no more charming nor distinguished bridal couple as they met at the altar of St. Paul's Church, Brookline.

IN A BEAUTIFUL AND fragrant setting in the gardens of the bride's home their hosts of friends gathered to wish them well. Mrs. Cushing and Mrs. Roosevelt, mothers of the happy couple, were in the receiving line with the bride and bridegroom. It took several hours for the line to diminish. The collation was served at flower-banked tables of vari-colored hues, the bridal table only being decorated in white roses, white stock and ferns.

YOUNG MRS. ROOSEVELT looked like a vogue bride in her heavy satin on medieval lines and chiffon veil most becomingly worn with a band of silver ribbon caught with tiny pearls. Her bouquet was of calla lilies. The pink and blue organdie frocks of her attendants were very modish, being long and full, with large hats to match. The gowns of the guests vied with the blossoms of the gardens to make the scene one of the most brilliant of the season.

WE SAW MRS. HARVEY CUSHING in grey lace, Mrs. Roosevelt in gray chiffon, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., graceful in printed chiffon with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hamlen, Agnes Murchie, stunning in dark blue ensemble with odd hat which was most becoming. With her was Mr. John Harwood. Mrs. John C. Phillips was smiling as always in grey lace, Mrs. Harold Peabody fetching in black and white print, Mrs. C. Terry Collens in green silk crepe, Miss Sonja Lie of Park ave., New York, a house-guest of the Cushings, in soft shaded print with large hat and her friend, Miss Elsa Davis, in black and white print, and many other out-of-town visitors. The bride and groom will be at home at 19 Coolidge Hill rd., Cambridge, after July 1.

Honored by Hundreds on Bridal Day

THE POPULAR bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, who were married yesterday at St. Paul's Church, Brookline. The wedding was one of the season's biggest.

Hat and Scarf Are Adapted for Town Wear

Helps to Make Plain Dark Suit or Dress Suitable for Many Occasions

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 5.

BY NOW, this business of wearing a hat and scarf of matching design, fabric and color has become a set custom. Primarily created to complement the sports suit, the hat and scarf ensemble has outgrown its original intent and now is offered for more formal wear with successful results.

It is not often that an idea originating in the sports field should be adapted for town wear, but in this particular instance it has been done with felicitous results. A hat and scarf ensemble in bright colors will do wonders toward making a plain dark suit or dress suitable for wear throughout the day, without detracting from a tailor-made appearance.

Black georgette is certainly in the sartorial spotlight just now. It is an ideal medium for evening frocks as it is a happy compromise between the quite sheer and the heavy, close woven fabrics.

The ideal black georgette frock is cut on long, graceful lines and is devoid of ornamentation save for a touch of strass or a jeweled belt buckle, relying on originality of cut and design to create the frock.

Such a dress will do satisfactory duty throughout a season and always look the part, an extremely useful attribute, by the way, even in these days of well-stocked wardrobes.

DRAPED TOQUE AND SCARF of heavy satin barred and plaided shades of light blue are shown in this Agnes model. Hat lays flat on nape of neck. (Sketched in Paris.)

The sketch of the hat and scarf ensemble is from an Agnes model. It shows a draped toque and scarf of heavy black satin barred and plaided in shades of light blue. Turned back from the face, the draped brim of the turban is drawn and cut at the sides and lays flat at the nape of the neck.

The charming Worth evening frock was worn by a beautiful American woman at the recent concert given by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at the Opera House here, where music and the mode mingled to the vast satisfaction of a huge and distinguished audience.

The frock is of black georgette with a bertha that passes over the shoulders and edges the deep V-shaped and very wide decollete. The skirt is fitted closely over the hips, but widens gradually to form flaring godets of irregular length edged with a taffeta ruching. An embroidered ornament in strass is placed at the deep point of the decolletage in back.

BLACK GEORGETTE is used in this stunning evening frock as suggested by Worth and worn recently by an American woman in Paris Opera House. (Sketched in Paris.)

Noted Speakers to Attend Big Social Sessions in Garden

Although the National Conference of Social Work opens officially next Sunday night in Boston Garden, the National Probation Association, the Salvation Army, the American Association of Psychiatric Social Workers and many others of the 40 associated groups begin their programs and meetings tomorrow.

With Judge Charles W. Hoffman, presiding officer, the probation group will start its sessions at 9 a. m., continuing throughout the day with discussions and reading of papers by leading field workers and judges.

Judge Herbert G. Cochran, Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court at Norfolk, Va., who spoke recently before the Women's City Club, will talk on juvenile court workers. Judge Cochran has repeatedly stressed the need for more juvenile courts throughout the country, as well as increased numbers of courts for the amicable and mutual settling of marital incompatabilities.

Psychiatry and crime the application of one to the other, will be outlined at length by Dr. Winifred Overholzer, director of the division for examination of prisoners in the department of mental disease in the State House. Sanford Bates, prison superintendent, is also scheduled.

Club women from all over the State are planning to attend one or more of the sessions during the congress, around which they might plan next season's programs along social welfare, public health and American Home lines.

300 Delegates Coming to College Catholic Clubs' Conference

The International Conference of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs which takes place in this city July 2 to 5, inclusive, will attract more than 300 delegates and guests to its sessions. Miss Margaret Murphy heads the committee of arrangements.

A patroness list, long and imposing, headed by Mrs. Francis Slattery, president of the League of Catholic Women, has been named.

Marion Davies Scores Hit in 'Floradora'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

Los Angeles, June 5—A Who's Who in the film capital might easily have been compiled last night from the list of film celebrities who attended the opening of Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan screen play, "The Florodora Girl."

The opening of a new theater is always an event in Hollywood, but the combined premiere of the beautiful new Pantages Theater and the presentation of "The Floradora Girl" was a gala occasion that will not soon be forgotten.

Aside from Marion Davies' popularity in the film colony, advance word had been whispered around that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had struck a new note in "The Floradora Girl" and how this film colony does react to originality.

STAR IS HONOR GUEST.

Benny Rubin and Walter Catlett, famous comedians, introduced the stars over the microphone and their bright and witty introductions sent everyone into the theater laughing. Eddie Cantor, in his own inimitable way, continued the merriment when he officiated as master of ceremonies inside the theater.

The two Pantages boys, Rodney and Lloyd, deserve a world of credit, for the planning of this fine, new, modernistic theater and for the carrying out of a brilliant first night and a program of interest.

West Coast in association with Pantages had a formal dedication, with Marion Davies officiating as guest of honor. Eddie Cantor introduced Miss Davies and presented her with a gold pass, set with diamonds, in remembrance of the occasion. Lloyd Pantages made the dedicatory speech and H. B. Franklin said a few well-chosen words about the significance of this fine new theater.

CHARMING AND QUAINT.

Perhaps the greatest charm about "The Floradora Girl" is that it dares to be different. There are none of the old stereotyped scenes that have long been associated with our film making. "The Floradora Girl" is like a breath of fresh air; it is charming and quaint without being old-fashioned.

The love interest is as sparkling and full of romance as if it happened in 1930 instead of in the gay nineties. The comedy is as full of bright quips as if the slang had been spoken by a modern Ziegfeld chorus girl instead of by a member of the famous "Floradora Sextette."

Yet there is no slang that was not a part of the vocabulary of the chorus girl 30 years ago when Diamond Jim Brady bought his wine and bock beer was a privileged beverage and "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," was the song of the hour.

The expressions are all born fide and were censored by one who was a part of the mauve decade when these beautiful girls carried off New York's choicest matrimonial catches; the gay era when a tandem for two, leg o' mutton sleeves, pompadours and huge chrysanthemums were the vogue.

MISS DAVIES SUPREME.

Marion Davies impresses even those who have long appreciated her artistry by her portrayal of Daisy, the chorus girl who invariably says the wrong thing, but is by turns pathetic, amusing and alluring, but always beautiful. The costumes of the gay 90s, are particularly becoming to Miss Davies' slenderness. Her blonde hair, worn in the fashion of the fluffy ruffle age, is so becoming we almost cast our vote in favor of it as against the modern bob.

The cast of "The Floradora Girl" has undeniably fine talent, but even with the array of Hollywood and Broadway's best and bravest, Miss Davies' performance stands out. She again demonstrates she is indeed our very foremost comedienne of the screen.

Some wise man once said a picture can only be as good as its director permits. In that case, let me say Harry Beaumont gives his best to "The Floradora Girl." He demonstrates his craftsmanship in the deft handling of the comedy scenes; among them probably the funniest is the scene at the beach, where the pretty maidens wear long bathing suits and modestly hope their gentlemen friends won't see their ankles.

FOR ALL AGES

The excellent story and dialogue furnished by Gene Markey are kept perfectly in the "Gay Nineties" spirit. Mr. Markey has wisely balanced his comedy with a little pathos, just the type of story that fits Marion Davies so well and which she, better than any actress on the screen, knows how to handle. Ralph Spence, Al Boasberg and Herbert Hopkins wrote additional dialogue. The music, gay, catchy and tuneful, is by Herbert Stothart and the lyrics by Clifford Grey and Andy Rice.

"The Floradora Girl," when all has been said and done, is the type of entertainment that the whole family can enjoy. Pa and Ma will love the reminiscences of the days when they did their courtin' on a tandem, and the younger generation will adore the comedy and the contrasts in manners and modes.

Two Brilliant Parties for Marion Davies' Opening Night

(Universal Service)

Hollywood, June 5—Two parties of splendid proportions, besides a number of less formal ones, were given last night to celebrate the opening of Marion Davies' picture, "The Florodora Girl," at the Pantages Hollywood Theater.

The first was a dinner party, given by Miss Davies at the Embassy Club. The second, following the showing of the picture, was given in honor of Miss Davies by Miss Carmen Pantages and Lloyd Pantages at George Olsen's night club.

BRITAIN IN BLUE BOOK EXPLAINS MALTA CLASH

London, June 5 (AP)—Details of the conflict between the British Government in Malta, important Mediterranean naval base, and the Holy See were revealed today with publication of an official "Blue Book" on the subject.

The Blue Book charges the Vatican with acting in a manner "which constitutes nothing less than a claim to interfere with the domestic politics of a British colony."

The trouble arose about 18 months ago when the prime minister, Lord Strickland, himself a Catholic, prevented ecclesiastical authorities from transferring a Franciscan priest who was a native Maltese to a Sicilian monastery against his will.

Maltese Catholics then were forbidden by churchmen to vote for the government party. A compromise between the government and the Holy See was put into draft form. It defines relations of church and state in the colony and had been expected to settle the controversy.

The final note in the correspondence was written May 26 and contains British assurance of a desire to assist in maintaining peace and tranquility on the island.

"This being so," the government wrote, "they (the government regret that the Holy See have not appreciated the necessity of taking practical measures to implement this assurance and have refused to take steps as far as concerns them for restoration of the normal political life of Malta."

THE DAILY HUBBUB

SATURDAY NIGHT

Cop standing in front of Faneuil Hall gives the signal and 1400 venders rush for favorite positions—horses and carts first so as not to block traffic. Pushcart men follow . . . rattle of old wheels on the cobblestones . . . collision of two carts . . .

"Hey, whatsa matter, you? This is my place! I was here first. What the hell you try to do, eh?"

North st. is soon a river of green vegetables and fruit . . . red strawberries piled high . . . "Sparrow grass" is there in season . . . red and yellow bananas . . . pyramids of onions and potatoes . . . live crabs and luscious looking muscles, favorite Italian dishes. The moving market flows to Blackstone st. . . . Sicilian cheeses and spaghetti . . . Handkerchief Jack is here . . . "Take 'em or leave 'em, six for a quarter" . . . Blue Bologna and horse meat sausages . . . sauerkraut in big buckets . . . 5000 or more bargain hunters milling in between the carts. A few cops and several thousand more last-minute buyers waiting for prices to go down . . .

"I'll give yer two bits for the lot."

"D'yer think I steal 'em lady?"

Stray oranges rolling in the street . . . urchins scrambling for them. Ruxom woman with two live chickens swinging by the feet . . . Babel of voices and hawkers' cries . . . Glass cases on sidewalk packed with beef and mutton . . . Plain clothes man on looking for pickpockets . . . Street stand hung with canvas suspenders . . . Thirsty shoppers guzzling orangeade . . . Hanover st. malt and hop shop doing big business . . . Male shoppers stocking up for the week.

THE MEN BEHIND WINDOWS

Window shopping is a popular evening diversion, principally enjoyed by women. Not that men do not indulge some in the sport, too; it may be that there is not so much for them to see. The parade of window shoppers starts about 7:30 every evening and continues until after the theaters have let out. Tremont, Boylston and Washington sts. are the thoroughfares of leading displays. Along lower Washington st. in the furniture district, prospective housekeepers feast their dreams. Women's apparel, however, is the principal attraction. It is the practice of some of these stores to dress their windows at night—others early in the morning before the shops have opened.

We have often watched these window artists at work. In stripped feet they move deftly about among the merchandise. The scene is much like a back stage view in the theaters—all is being made ready for next day's shoppers. The men behind these window exhibitions give much thought to the business . . . It is an exacting profession.

Alvin G. Anderson is chief of the window department at Jordan Marsh. Mr. Anderson informed us that window dressing styles are constantly changing. Not as rapidly as women's styles—but they do change. The trend right now is for simplicity . . . as little scenery as possible and as much merchandise in the window as good taste will permit.

Charles G. Dawes, the American ambassador, was one of several distinguished persons to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Mr. Baldwin announced a gift of $2,500,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation had been made available today through completion of the collection of $2,350,000.

CHICAGO GETS EAST'S KILLERS

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—Stoppage of further gang carnage rather than the solution of recent killings occupied police today as information leaked to them that crack gunmen from the Eastern gangsters were being recruited in the local war. Officers were sure the conflict was by no means ended with its death list of 10 in less than a week.

Not one, but two gang wars are under way, as police see it. On the one hand is the battle between factions among Sicilian gang leaders for supremacy in the liquor and extortion traffic. On the other is the enmity between the Moran and Druggan gangs, accentuated by the triple murder of Druggan men at Fox Lake early Sunday.

HOLMES TALKS OVER CASES

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme court motored from Beverly to Boston today and visited U. S. District Court Judge James A. Lowell. It is understood the two just ere discussed the case of Simon G. Croswell, former Cambridge attorney, who for the last 17 years has been an inmate of the Brattleboro, Vt., retreat.

Recently Croswell applied for release. Justice Holmes granted a writ of habeas corpus which directed that Croswell be brought before Justice Lowell.

Judge Lowell refused to hear the case on the grounds that he resided it as a matter coming under the jurisdiction of the federal courts in Vermont.

ACTING MAYOR JOINS CENSUS RECOUNT MOVE

With officials and other residents of incensed at the reported inaccuracy of the federal census returns for Boston, the movement for either a recount in certain challenged districts, or a supplementary censor-taking by means of a check-up such as has been instituted by the Boston Evening American gained general support.

Before leaving for New York, where he attended the graduation of his daughter, Mayor Curley reiterated his statement that he would demand a recount.

Messages have been sent to Senator Walsh, Congressman McCormack and Congressman Douglass urging them to see that the census returns are carefully checked.

Many persons consider it unlikely that in a decade which has seen tremendous industrial and commercial growth in Boston there has been a concomitant decrease in population. They believe there are thousands who were not approached by the enumerators.

To determine whether or not this belief is well-founded, the Boston Evening American is asking those who have not been listed to fill in the coupon printed in today's American. If the coupon, properly filled out, is sent to the Census Editor he will arrange to have a census enumerator call. If that is found inconvenient, a telephone call to the Census Editor at Liberty 4000 will accomplish the same result.

Acting Mayor William G. Lynch strongly indorses the plan of the Boston Evening American for checking up on the census returns of the federal government, which he believes to be far short of the entire population of the city.

LYNCH WANTS RECOUNT

Mr. Lynch calls attention to reported discrepancies in some of the Boston wards, refers to the fact that Mayor Curley himself was certain an error had been made in Ward 8, which includes part of the South End and the Mt. Pleasant section of Roxbury, and challenges the reports from his section in Suffolk, Boston.

"It is a physical impossibility for inexperienced men to tabulate a correct census of the city," declared Acting Mayor Lynch. "I don't want to cast reflections on all the city's census takers when I say that, merely touching on incidents brought to my attention by some of the tabulations.

"I read where Mayor Curley touched on discrepancies in his old home ward, formerly Ward 17 and now known as Ward 8, which takes in part of old Ward 6 in the South End and the Mt. Pleasant section in Roxbury. The mayor is generally well-informed when he makes a statement of that sort and knows what he's talking about.

"The Boston Evening American is to be commended for the enterprise it is showing in helping Boston to get a fair deal in the census. I most heartily approve of this course."

CITES OTHER MISCOUNTS

"There is no doubt that thoughtless mistakes have been made in taking the census in each of the city's 22 wards. The same thing happened in taking the 1920 census according to the city statistics department.

"The government figure of 747,823 then was shown to be at least 37,614 short of the actual number of inhabitants of the city. The correct figure, according to the statistics department, was 780,532, which was an increase of 109,532 over the 1910 census, instead of an increase of only 72,168."

Census Supervisor Louis N. Scofield of the 12th District, as I hope less if any was due to the trend of commerce and the desire of the younger generation to move to cities and towns within a 30-mile radius of Boston.

COOKS INTERESTED IN FLAVOR NOW

The Use of Sugar Encourages Art of Seasoning

[illegible] a generation ago most of the cooking was performed by rule of thumb. Great pride was taken in the amount and variety of hearty food that was prepared.

Today, however, there is a new departure in cookery. Attention is directed to heightening the flavor of simple, wholesome foods rather than changing them with rich sauces and gravies. Strange as it may appear, sugar is an important ingredient in this new seasoning.

In flavoring many vegetables, sugar shows its worth. This is especially true regarding peas and corn, which lose their original sugar content between the time they are picked and cooked. To restore this flavor a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a good rule to follow.

Sugar also modifies the flavor of sharp fruits and improves the taste of spinach, carrots and tomatoes. And a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt makes a simple meat stew much more palatable and satisfying.

Doctors and dietitians [illegible] the use of sugar as a flavor because it makes foods, which are carriers of vitamins, mineral salts and roughage, more palatable. Good food promotes good health! The Sugar Institute

FEAR GIRL FLED SUITOR TO DIE

San Francisco, June 5 (AP)—Fearing that Miss Alice Giddens, 23, amateur actress and former University of California co-ed, committed suicide or fled to avoid marrying a man she did not love, police today investigated her disappearance.

Miss Giddens, sister of Roy A. Giddens, telephone company executive left Los Angeles May 26 on the Coastal liner Yale for San Francisco. When the Yale arrived here the girl was missing. Traveling bag, coat, purse and a farewell note were found in her cabin.

The brother arrived here yesterday and enlisted police aid. He said Miss Giddens had been in love with a Los Angeles youth, but apparently had agreed to her mother's wish that she marry another.

The brother fears she leaped overboard or disappeared when the Yale docked here to avoid marrying the unwelcome suitor.

A Los Angeles despatch says the mother, Mrs. Wilda Giddens, today expressed belief the girl is in New York to marry a former Pasadena, (Cal.) actor.

BRIDE CLEARED IN BANK THEFT

Mrs. Marion C. Groves Pearl, bride of a few months, was recovering from nervous shock today, following her acquittal in the Salem Superior Court, where she was tried on the charge of stealing $15,000 from the Salem Co-operative Bank, where she was formerly employed as a clerk.

When Judge David F. Dillon directed that the jury return a verdict of not guilty, Mrs. Pearl stepped from her chair, apparently composed, but a few moments later her nerves gave way and she burst into tears.

Friends in the courtroom escorted the woman to her home, where today it was said her condition was good.

Mrs. Pearl was charged with larceny, embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses. The state failed to produce any convincing evidence. The jurymen returned the verdict without leaving the jury box.

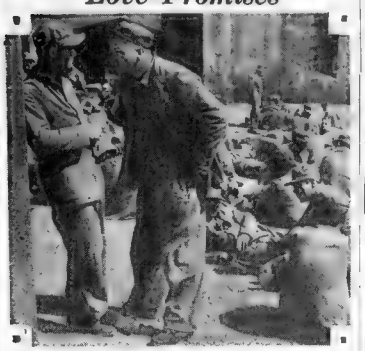
The BIG House

A Thrilling Drama of Life and Love, Baring The Horrors Behind Prison Walls

By JACK LAIT

Adapted from the scenario by Frances Marion and George F. Hill, A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Cosmopolitan production

Anne Calls on Morgan in Prison and Renews Love Promises



"Say, Butch," raved Morgan, "were you ever in love—I mean in love on the level?" He was strangely shaking all over.

In the first chapter of "The BIG House" we meet Duncan Morgan, a good-looking young man who was sent to jail for his third "stretch." Morgan was a robber. Next we meet Dean Ward Kent. On a wild New Year's Eve party his drunken driving results in a terrible smashup. Kent is found guilty of manslaughter, as one girl is killed, and is sent to the BIG House for seven years. He is thrown into a cell with two others and is saved by Morgan from a beating by the terrible "Butch." The convicts start a riot over food. Kent slips a knife in Morgan's pocket and the latter is placed in solitary confinement when it is found. He escapes from the prison hospital in a dead man's shroud, makes love to Anne and is warned by his former sweetheart, Ruby. The police get him by following Ruby. He is back in "The BIG House."

CHAPTER 15

Morgan was no fool. He walked quietly to the wall and between his fingers he picked up his entry in the bug race. Sure enough, he was stuck fast! But morgan wanted to be sure of the culprit. He made a sortie of inspection, looking over every man, but he could find none who was chewing gum save Butch.

He walked toward Butch and their eyes met. Butch gulped once, swallowed the gum, and then grinned sheepishly. Morgan showed the cons the gum beneath the beaten roach. Butch turned angrily on the group.

"Who done that?" he cried. "Who fixed this race?"

"You did!" cried Morgan, a twinkle in his eye. He reached down quickly and snatched up his ten packages of cigarettes and stuffed them in his blouse.

"Who . . . me?" Butch was offended.

"Butch" Accused
Is Caught Cheating

"Yes, you. You doped my stable."

His words were met with grumblings in the circle. Several who had lost glared at Butch. The latter's rage was mounting. He swept the faces about him with a menacing look, and asked:

"Who else here thinks I pulled a phoney?"

No answer. Then he turned on Morgan.

"You do—do you?"

Morgan nodded. Butch stepped forward. Morgan, unafraid stood in quiet defiance. His eyes challenged the bigger man's and dared him make another advance.

"I'm a crook, am I?"

"You stuck the gum under that bug."

"Say that again!"

"I say it again — an' you're a thievin' gun."

Butch let out a terrible yell. He started at Morgan, but that party only braced himself.

"Out it — Wallace!" the cry went up.

Butch stopped in his tracks. Wallace was behind him.

"Now you see," said Morgan, "I get a toe-hold on you, and then I throw you on your back—"

"What are you men doing—fighting?" asked Wallace.

"No, sir, wrestling," from Morgan.

Wallace noticed the pile of cigarettes and tobacco.

"Oh-ho! Gambling?"

"Oh, no, sir," said Butch innocently. "I wouldn't."

"Then how'd all those cigarettes get there?"

"I took them out of my coat while I was wrestling," said Morgan.

"Oh, well," and Wallace leaned over and scooped up all the cigarettes and tobacco and stuffed them in his own pockets. The men began to grumble, but Wallace quieted them with a black look.

When Wallace was out of earshot Butch began cursing. He turned on Morgan.

Anne Calls
Eyes Full of Tears

"You steamed all this up," he bombasted. "You got that screw on us. You called me names! I wouldn't take from no man—no man—but you, Morg, my ol' pal—t'anks!"

A guard led Morgan into the small visitors' room. His eyes swept the other section, behind the wire netting. There she was—Anne!

He rushed forward and for a moment he could say nothing. Anne looked at him, in the convict gray; her eyes filled with tears, her head slightly tilted, her hands against the screen.

"Anne!" he said at last.

"Oh, John—" she hesitated, then added: "You are John to me—John Everett—still my John——"

"Anne, how did you know I was ont today?"

"The warden—he told me. I had been to see him before. I had a long chat with him. I told him the truth—everything—how I knew you had changed and

Hoover Aids Hub on Airport

CURLEY ASKS U.S. TO RENT ISLAND

Mayor at White House Visit Tells of Development to Cost $18,000,000

By International Newsreel Service.

Mayor James M. Curley of Boston conferred with President Hoover and Secretary of War Hurley today on his city's proposition to rent from the government for a dollar a year Governor's Island in Boston harbor.

Curley told Mr. Hoover the city would like to use the abandoned island as part of a gantic airport it proposes to construct at cost of $17,000,000.

The mayor said if the city is given rental of the island it would construct a huge mooring mast and hangar for dirigibles at the field.

He explained the water from the mainland to the island would be filled in with dirt removed from a tunnel that will be built to connect Boston with East Boston. The filled in area would give the airport about 370 acres, extending two and one-half miles out toward the sea.

While Curley was at the White House Mr. Hoover telephoned the Secretary of War and told him "if there is anything you can do for him, please do it."

Secretary Hurley instructed Quartermaster-General DeWitt to investigate the status of the island and report to him his recommendations on its rental to Boston.

POSTAL CLERK CONFESSES TO MAIL THEFTS

Joseph A. Jackson of Hub-Newport R. R. Run Can't Explain Reason for Thefts

A much relieved postal clerk stood in the dock in Federal Court today and heard himself formally charged with theft of 15 registered letters from the railway mail service between Boston and Newport, R. I.

He is Joseph A. Jackson, 43, married and father of two children living on Fairmont st., Arlington. He had surrendered last night to postal inspectors, after telephoning to meet them and telling of his "shattered state of mind."

Before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney he pleaded guilty and was in $1000 to the grand jury. He furnished bonds.

For 15 years Jackson has been a trusted employe of the government on the Boston-Newport run. For weeks and he told Inspectors John P. Brosin and Thomas P. Cronin he began, for no understandable reason, to steal from the mails.

The thefts netted him only a small amount of money, he said. A week ago the matter preyed on his mind. Yesterday he could not work, and last night he decided to make a clean breast of the thefts.

He met the inspectors by appointment and gave himself up.

"No one is to blame but myself, he declared. "I am cured in mind now that I have told all."

Jackson's record up to his thefts had been unimpeachable, it was stated at the postoffice.

The present bus line from Wellington ends at Medford sq., and the Upper Highland ave. line in Malden ends half a mile below Elm st.

Start on Romantic Trip Five Years After Wedding

Married just five years ago today, Mr and Mrs. James A. Mulhall of Braintree are leaving tonight to sail for Europe on a long-deferred vacation.

Theirs is a romance growing out of musty law books and flourishing in spite of tiresome days in court over tedious law proceedings. It was while they were both seniors [illegible] that they met, he at Suffolk and she at Portia.

Following their graduation in 1925, they both passed the bar exams in June. She then went with [illegible] Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, corporation lawyers, for [illegible] she has done research work while [illegible] at home.

A growing interest in their work drew this ambitious young pair together. Before long they began to discuss the difficult problems and points of law that cropped up in their daily work. Soon a good [illegible] of mutual study budded into romance and one June 5, 1925, they were married.

Now they are going to make an extended trip abroad, the first long vacation they have taken since their marriage. They deny it is to be a second honeymoon for them, but is to be a romantic pilgrimage.

Stopping first in Ireland, they plan to visit the famous old town of Oberammergau, cities in Italy and France, and make a brief stay in England. They will be gone about two months.

Mulhall was a member of the state legislature in 1925-26 from Mattapan and Dorchester. It was said a Democrat could never be elected from that district, so he set out to prove that it could be done. He was the first to ever go from that section.

Here's How to Escape Heat Prostration

Five simple rules for the avoidance of suffering from the present heat wave which grips New England were given today by Dr. Francis S Broderick of the staff of Boston City Hospital:

"Plenty of rest during the hot spell," was the first of the rules laid down by Dr. Broderick.

"In cases of extreme temperature, as at the present time," he said, "rest is the greatest preventative of collapse.

"At least eight hours' rest out of every twenty-four is absolutely necessary."

The other rules given by Dr. Broderick are:

"Keep out of the hot sun.

"Don't hurry or worry.

"Avoid all alcoholic drinks.

"Drink plenty of cool, but not ice-cold, water."

Dr. Broderick also gave simple rules for the treatment of a person overcome by the heat:

"Lay the heat victim flat on his back," said the physician. "Put ice or cloths dipped in cold water to the head and immediately call a physician.

"A stimulant for the heart is often necessary when a person is overcome, but this should be prescribed by a doctor. A person who is subject to weak spells and who feels the effects of the heat should consult a doctor, and thus prevent a serious situation."

REFUSE TO TALK ABOUT AMELIA'S WEDDING PLANS

Miss Earhart's Mother and Sister Throw No Light on Chapman Rumor

If Amelia Earhart is married or plans to marry Sam Chapman, who was her best fellow before she flew the Atlantic, her mother and her sister are unaware of it, they said today.

The former Boston settlement worker first girl to span the Atlantic by air, was a visitor at the Marblehead summer home of her family yesterday, giving rise to the report that she was to wed Chapman who lives in the same town.

Mrs. Alfred Morrissey, Miss Earhart's sister, admitted that the girl pilot and Chapman had recently been seeing each other in New York, but denied that her visit in Marblehead was concerned with romance.

She did not know her sister's whereabouts today, but Chapman's mother, Mrs. Emily Chapman, said she had gone to Detroit.

"It's Amelia's own business and she would not necessarily have to tell us of her plans, but I think it is quite unlikely she would be married without telling us something about it," said Mrs. Morrissey.

"Of course, Amelia had an interest in coming here to see her new nephew, my eight-weeks-old son."

"There's no story at all," said Mrs. Chapman, "My son is not married. Don't you suppose that when Miss Earhart is engaged her mother will formally announce it?"

Later she said "I will neither affirm nor deny that they are married."

Some time ago Miss Earhart denied a report that she was engaged to George Palmer Putnam, the New York publisher, recently divorced who backed her flight.

Seven Policemen and Bat Battle, Bat Loses

While not included in the official averages, seven husky gendarmes of the Mattapan station went to bat early today—finally—bringing in one score after two hours of furious and perspiring work.

Patrolman Edward Logan, tapping out a police symphony on the bulletin typewriter, heard a strange "swishing" sound and a shadow passed before his eyes.

One is not careless of shadows before one's eyes at 2 a. m. therefore Patrolman Logan ceased his symphony abruptly.

Fluttering wildly about the room was a bat and Patrolman Logan seized a broom and waved it. He was still waving 15 minutes later when the bat decided to fly out a door into the deputies' office. Patrolmen John Doran, William McCarthy, Gus Jankas, Charles McPartlan, Gratton England and Thomas Coyne were next.

Jankas was the first to wake up when the bat got off its course and landed on Jankas' face.

FIRE PANIC IN CAMBRIDGE

The Dana Hill section of Cambridge was panic-stricken this morning when a fire broke out in the two-family wooden dwelling at 23 Gorham ave., and for a while threatened to sweep the immediate district.

The occupants aroused by the cries of passersby, fled in scant attire. Tenants in neighboring homes, aroused by the din of the conflagration, roused to the street, only to be told by fire officials that the fire was well in hand.

The blaze had broken through the roof when firemen arrived and the whole section was enveloped in smoke. Fifteen minutes work smothered it.

The property is owned by Alice Welch and is occupied on the first floor by Edward F. Collier, former member of the library board. The upper suite is occupied by Mrs. Myrtle T. Mayo. She donned a coat over her night attire and Fed Collier assisted members of his family to safety.

the day's grind demands men of unusual Vitality

"Oh! fine"

you want to feel the same way

BUSINESS today requires that the successful man be physically fit and mentally alert.

Men, especially, forget themselves physically. Their work demands practically all their time. They get little or no sunshine. They are robbed of a good appetite . . . and when their red-blood-cells fall below normal their flesh becomes flabby, their nerves unsteady. Their strength must be reinforced.

Soundness of body and peace of mind depend upon the proper number of red-cells in the blood—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red-cell count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building.

You will be pleased to know that S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take.

MALDEN MOTHERS' CLUB BATTLES FOR MARRIED WOMAN TEACHER

COMMITTEE TURNS HER DOWN

Demand the Rules Be Changed So Mrs. Whidden May Be Retained

Malden mothers today took up the cudgels of battle in behalf of Mrs. Katherine B. Whidden, substitute teacher in the Linden school, whom the Malden school board has refused to appoint as a regular teacher.

As a result of the board's refusal, members of the Linden Mothers' Club of Malden have sent a petition to the school committee, demanding either that they reconsider action on Mrs. Whidden or hold a public hearing.

The school committee turned down Mrs. Whidden because of its rule that no married women except widows and divorced women may be regular teachers.

However, the members of the Mothers' Club argue that the rule should be altered to include women living apart from their husbands, which would take in Mrs. Whidden.

Mrs. Whidden has been principal's assistant for several terms. When the petition was received from the Mothers' Club, Edward J. Bushnell moved that she be elected. The two women members of the committee, Mrs. C. H. Staples and Mrs. H. H. Hammond, with Chairman William M. Bailey, voted to postpone action until the school board meeting in September.

Members of the Mothers' Club, following the meeting last night, declared they planned to call a mass meeting at an early date to take up the matter.

Sends His 7 Children Away Turns on Gas

Anthony DeMatto, 41, of Gage st, Revere, endeavored to end his life around 10 o'clock before police by turning on the gas in the bedroom of his home after sending his seven children from the house to play.

DeMatto has been ill for three months. This morning his wife went to visit neighbors, and it was then the father sent the children away.

One of the oldest children, a daughter, became suspicious of her father's actions and returned. She found the doors locked and ran to the home of a neighbor, who summoned police. An inhalator was used by the police, after which DeMatto was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where his name is on the danger list.

It is understood that Rainsford Island will be used as a base, and that the school will be established there, while the vessel will be used for practical sea instructions, making voyages up and down the coast with the cadets.

SAWYER SETS 'SHOE' STYLE

Representative Roland D. Sawyer, Congregational minister from Ware, does not claim to be the original barefoot boy, but he does hold himself up as pioneer wearer of sandals in these parts.

Because of the coolness of the weather and the early prorocation of the Legislature, he failed this year to sport his abbreviated footgear during the session, but with the warm spell of the last few days he dug them out of the family closet for a trip to the Capitol.

JEWISH CENTER SECRETARIES GATHER

Delegates From All Sections of Country Hear Talk on Ideal Living

With representatives from all sections of the country present, the five-day conference of the National Association of Jewish Community Center secretaries opened last night at the Hotel Statler.

The principal speaker was the president, Abraham W. Rosenthal of New York, executive director of the Bronx Young Men's Hebrew Association. Greetings of the Council of Jewish Education were extended by Louis Hurwich of Boston, and in behalf of the Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association by Jacob Wiseman.

ALL EMBRACING PROGRAM

President Rosenthal, reviewing the history of the Jewish Center movement, said it had its roots in the moral, spiritual and cultural needs of the growing generation. Affiliated with the Jewish welfare board, he said, are 150 centers, representing an investment of $25,000,000 and a membership of more than 275,000 young men and women, boys and girls.

"We must have all around program," he declared, "physical, social, mental, moral, religious and vocational. No life problem which can be benefited by contact with another mind should be omitted from our program.

JADED EMOTIONS

"A mind and body loaded with fatigue is not capable of enjoying quiet beauty, true thought, but instead craves the crude excitement of restless speeding in motor cars, the trivial bus excreting thrills of the amusement park, superlatives and exaggeration in talk, artificial stimulants, the heightened gaiety of the 'wild party.' How to inculcate a desire for the happy serenity of creative leisure is the daily task of the center worker."

Further sessions will be held today and will continue through Sunday.

Just think of the traffic at this Park Street Church corner today and carefully look over the quiet scene at the same spot over 100 years ago. At the right is the church, with couple of apple venders on the steps, and beyond are the Park st. gates to the Common—gates! They came pretty nearly locking up the Common nights at that time. On the left, at the lamp, is Winter st. Beyond the spires indicate the first Masonic Temple, now the R. H. Stearns store.

RICARDO CORTEZ TO PLAY OPPOSITE MARJORIE RAMBEAU IN 'HER MAN'

LOS ANGELES, JUNE 5—Ricardo Cortez is back in Hollywood. He arrived yesterday via air, brought here that suddenly by a radio message from Harry Weber. Pathe wanted Mr. Cortez to play opposite Marjorie Rambeau in "Her Man" and since he was on the ocean it was necessary to radio him. A radiogram in answer promised that he would get here in time.

Mr. Cortez, who has been on a holiday in Paris, went abroad a few months ago. He first went east to play in vaudeville and was later joined by Alma Rubens, who also tried her luck in the two-a-day. Miss Rubens is still in the east where she has been on the Orpheum vaudeville circuit.

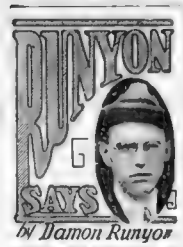
SCHMELING'S RIGHT IS DANGEROUS

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 | BOSTON, THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1930 | FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

Thayer Plays Reid in Wollaston Tourney



by Damon Runyon

NEW YORK, JUNE 5.—FROM over the land the boxing experts are looking eastward to put their goggles on Herr Max Schmeling, the Black Uhlan of the Rhine, and Jack Sharkey of Boston. The rival camps at Endicott and Orangeburg are entertaining many visitors these days.

From San Francisco comes Pat Frayne of the Call-Bulletin. The redoubtable Marcus Aurelius Kelly, far famed as the red headed reporter of the Arroyos, has just entrained at Los Angeles.

Bob Edgren, one of the old guard, who has seen 'em all from James J. Corbett down, has reached the upstate fistic cantonment to report on the proceedings for the syndicate he represents.

Harvey Woodruff, of the Chicago Tribune, got in Tuesday. Warren Brown, of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, is expected today at Endicott, and Eddie Geiger, of the Chicago American, has been in New York several days.

This is just the advance guard. Reservations for over 300 working newspaper men have been registered at Walter St. Denis' chief of publicity for Madison Square Garden. Legation of London writers is looked for this week.

I have been greatly interested in hearing the different comments on the gladiators. Most of the visitors have seen Sharkey before—some have seen him several times. But to many Schmeling is a stranger, and naturally he is commenting on an object of curiosity to them. Almost without exception the visitors are strongly impressed by the Black Uhlan.

Schmeling Impresses Sports Writers

MORE SO, I WOULD SAY, THAN the New York experts who have seen a good deal of Schmeling since he first came to America. The youth, and style of the German strikes the out-of-towners at once especially after they have seen Sharkey.

"Jack looks good at his gymnastic stunts," said one of them to me yesterday, "But he somehow strikes me as an old man. I find him too bulky. The comfort of a number of prosperous years seems to have settled over him. I cannot see in Sharkey any of the spirit of youth that seems to possess Schmeling.

"You cannot convince me that a man who has been up to that old door of opportunity as many times as Sharkey, and has always been repulsed, retains the ambition with which he starts. I like a youngster who is coming on up and up against a veteran who has almost reached the peak and skidded down. I don't care for his waist line, and for his nature, and settled aspect generally.

"Give me those lean, hungry looking ones, like Schmeling, who haven't been 'on thoroughly domesticated.' Still, 'the man remained, "I never liked old Jess Willard because he was too domesticated, and Jess became champion of the World."

Advance Sale Already Nears Half Million

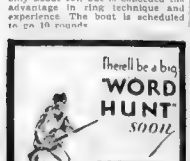
AROUND 4 O'CLOCK TUESDAY afternoon Joe Bonnico, of the Madison Square Garden box office forces, reported the advance sale for the Milk Fund show at, roughly $475,000, a figure that seems to make my guess of $500,000 net for the show seem far too skimpy.

The demand for ringside seats as far back as they go has become terrific. Buyers who were coming about the 20th row a few days ago will be tickled to death to get seats here now.

Carnera Meets K. O. Christner Tonight

Detroit, June 5 (AP)—Primo Carnera, who hasn't been able to find anyone his size to "pick on" will enter the ring tonight in Floyd Fitzsimmons' Arena, at the State Fair grounds with Kid O. Christner, the Akron, O., "rubber man," the most formidable opponent he has encountered in his long American fistic tour.

Primo is expected to tip the beam at around 275. Christner weighs only about 197, but is conceded the advantage in ring technique and experience. The bout is scheduled to go 10 rounds.



SCHMELING HITS HARD WITH RIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

Endicott, N. Y., June 5—Max Schmeling is going to try to knock out Jack Sharkey with a short right hand punch to the chin when they clash in their 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium, New York on June 12.

This is my belief after watching the German breeze through seven rounds of boxing at his training camp here.

Jack Conway

Schmeling keeps his right hand cocked on his chest. There is not any windup when he decides to let the punch go. He drops the sock to the jaw without any false motion. The wallop is delivered with such lightning - like speed that it is difficult for one to get out of the way of it.

It was a right hand belt to the whiskers which enabled Schmeling to chop Risko to a draw. It was also right hand blows which wrecked Paulino after he had been chopped down by a steady bombardment of left hand wallops.

Schmeling delivers his right hand sock while going forward. His entire body is behind the punch. Max has also improved with his left hand attack. He hooks with is left fairly well. There is also considerable drive behind Schmeling's left hooks. His left jab is not quite so effective.

Schmeling boxed two rounds with Lou Barba, two with Frankie Bush; two with Umberto Torriana and one with Jack Shaw. Barba gave the German his best workout. He made Max hustle at all times to land his punches, while he got in some good belts himself.

Torriani gave Schmeling a human target. And Max made the most of it. He hit Umberto with every punch in the box. He had him out on his feet when Joe Jacobs called time at the end of the second round.

Max Has No Mercy for Sparring Partners

Max has not the least mercy for a sparring partner. Like Dempsey, he believes a sparring partner's job is to stand up under as much punishment as he can. If he cannot take a rock, that's merely too bad. Schmeling does not intend to pull his wallops for his sparmates or anybody else.

Schmeling's every movement reminds one of Dempsey. In addition to his fat black hair and fighting face, he has added the Dempsey beard. Max has not been on speaking terms with a barber for some time and a has a black, bristling face adornment.

Dempsey always felt a 10 days' growth on his face enabled him to take a punch better. Perhaps he also believed a beard made him look more vicious, and that it tended to strike fear into the heart of his opponent.

Max was quite taxing down to the ring in business fashion. When he starts boring he keeps going forward at all times smashing away with both hands. He never appears blessed with a surplus amount of energy. I shall always remember Schmeling as he looked after traveling 15 rounds with Paulino. He was unmarked, while he was not even breathing the least bit fast.

Jones' Ball Club Has His Winning Ways

Atlanta, June 5 (AP)—Bobby Jones' ball club still is celebrating the triumph in the British amateur championship. The Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association—Robert T. Jones, Jr., vice-president—went on a victory spree the day Bobby beat Wethered in the final match at St. Andrews. They ran their streak to six straight yesterday by beating Birmingham, 8 to 6. Their drive has lifted them out of the cellar. Previously their best record was two straight.

GOLF CHAMP SITTING PRETTY

During her three rounds of the women's Eastern championship at the Country Club, Miss Frances Williams, the 18-year-old Pottsville, Pa., lassie, clearly demonstrated that she is one of the best prospects developed in years. The Eastern, which Miss Williams won by a margin of 11 strokes, was only her second championship golf tournament.

Six of the Montclair club members are playing in the championship flight of the first annual Wollaston Golf Club medal and match play tournament, the first rounds of which will be played today.

Fred G. Thayer, who was the medalist with a 77 yesterday, is matching strokes with George Reid the Blue Hill ace. Although Thayer will have a decided advantage over the visitor he is in [illegible] match as Reid who was only one stroke behind Thayer in the qualifying round, is a top notcher.

Bill Grimes

Walter Doyle another Montclairite drew Eddie Busiere one of the leading golfers in the Cape district. As Busiere has played little golf in the section, it's not as well known as his game warrants, but down around New Bedford and the Cape he is [illegible] with Dave Whiteside and Jesse Jr.

Ellis Expected to Defeat Bishop

Al Ellis, who is a member of The Country Club four ball team is expected to reach the second round by eliminating Harry Bishop of Weld. Ellis has been playing well this spring and may be the cause of a few upsets before he returns to The Country Club. Dick Woodman, South Shore and John Duane should prove a close match, while Al Pierce seems to have the call over Ed Kellenberger of Whitinsville.

Leon Emerson, who was the unsuccessful finalist in the state medal championship last year at Ross Burn, is pitted against J. H. Casey, of Thorney Lea. Emerson has been spotted the necessary strokes he is meeting a hard hitting veteran match player in Mona. Casey.

Down at the bottom of the lower half of the draw, Charlie Crowley, one of the best of the army of Wollaston golfers is playing Fred Hannon of Scarboro. Hannon is a fins medal player but as he has participated in few match play tournaments, little is known of the strength of his game at this style of play.

If the match play rounds work out as expected, Fred Thayer and Charlie Crowley will meet in the finals tomorrow afternoon.

Sharkey Gives Igoe 92 Miles-an-Hour Ride

By HYPE IGOE.

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 5. Jack Sharkey, a magic hand held the wheel of the car that sent me whizzing along the state road here last evening at over 90 miles an hour.

I had been racing for a month in a 16-cylinder car and he invited me to drop into the "millionaire guest" seat, beside the driver.

We bounded along the little back roads close to Gus Wilson's camp at first, roaring through wooded lanes, scattering the bobwhites and cottontails in fear of their lives.

"I love this, Hype. It would be the only thing that I would want in the world, if I could get away, be alone with flowers, wild oats, the kids, the missus and my gardens for diversion.

"I planted 3000 tulip bulbs just before I left home and, do you know, I can't wait to knock out Max, I'm so anxious to see them. I'm going on a flower jag when I get home."

"No, Hype, don't you go looking for me the day after the fight. I'm giving you and the gang fair warning. Let me see, I'll flatten Max about 10. I'll take the wife and the Buckleys and the boys out for a meal. I'll dance a little and will get to bed about 4. At 6 I'll be up and in the car, and zipp—away goes the new world's champion to hide out so he can talk to himself and be happy."

"Well, don't you think that people will want to see the champion—I mean about this—Hype, I—"

"Hell, no. I want to get away."

Sharkey Anxious to Get Away From Mob

"I want to go fishin'. I want to roll with the kids on the grass. I want to get away so that people won't be chugging by my house in rattling cars yelling, 'O, look at the champion.'

We reached the Billiard Table Route highway and I knew what was coming. Speed! Speed as we directed by Sharkey's mechanized foot against the big flat accelerator. Fifty! Sixty! Seventy. Seventy-five! A car comes. He slows up. Passing the startled Ford at sixty. Back to 75. Then 80. A curve.

With Padorewski hands he guided her around the slightly banked curve at 60. Funny little pippin, your Adam's apple, when it comes up into your mouth, uninvited.

Around the curve I thought on the [illegible] a two-mile straight [illegible] Zoom! I glanced down [illegible] Ninety-six speedometer. [illegible] Whee—

New York Beats Philly in Griscom Cup Match

With 14 of the matches accounted for, the New York and Philadelphia Inter-city teams were all even in the Griscom Cup matches at the Country Club today and Mrs. S. S. As a result of today's match, Philadelphia will play Boston tomorrow.

Miss Frances Williams, recently crowned eastern champion, came from behind to defeat Mrs. J. L. Anderson 2 up. Going to the 13th hole Miss Williams was 3 down but she won the next four holes and went into the lead for the first time. A 5 at the home hole gave Miss Williams a 2-up win.

Mrs. Edward Stevens was two down with two to play in her match with Mrs. L. W. Robie, but a 4-4 finish squared the match at the 18th and Mrs. Stevens finally won the decision at the 21st hole. On the 18th green Mrs. Stevens dropped a 60-foot putt for a 4, with her opponent's ball dead to the cup.

They halved the 19th with sixes and both got their fours at the 20th. They were in considerable trouble going down the 21st fairway and both had played four shots when they had reached the green. Mrs. Robie took three putts and lost the hole and match to a 5.

Cubs Slaughter Braves in Second Game, 18 to 10

BERGER HITS 15TH HOMER OF SEASON

By JOE CASHMAN

They went into the fourth inning 10 runs behind and before the fifth was over they had driven Pat Malone from the hill and were only trailing by four markers.

But nothing that the Tribal moundsmen threw could fool those Cubs, and the natives' great fight was just a much wasted effort.

Just half the hostiles' hits were made by "Kiki" Cuyler and Russ Stephenson. The former after being hit on the head the first time up, made a home run, a double and three singles, and scored four runs. The latter produced two doubles and three singles in as [illegible] trips to the plate.

NASHUA NINE QUITS N. E. LEAGUE

Nashua withdrew from the New England League for the second time in two years last night. Financial difficulties was the cause of the team giving up its franchise.

Salaries due the players last Sunday were not paid as the Nashua treasury had not sufficient funds to meet the payroll, and as the league did not live up to their agreement the directors decided to throw up the sponge

Lynn won yesterday, defeating the Portland Mariners by the score of 5 to 0

Salem made Manchester bite the dust again at Donovan Field, Salem to the tune of 5 to 2.

Davidson Suspends Nashua Players

Nashua, N. H., June 5 (AP)- The entire Nashua team of the New England Baseball League suspended today by Claude Davidson, league president, after the players had failed to agree on a salary question. John "Shauno" [illegible] manager of the team, dissatisfied with developments, resigned

Davidson came here today after local financial backing had been withdrawn because of the alleged failure of the league to fulfill a promise to assist the club financially until July 1. Aid had been asked because of the recent disastrous fire here which made severe inroads in the club's gate receipts

The players were informed by Davidson that they would have to go to Maine on a three-day playing trip, starting today They refused to make the trip unless they received their salaries for the past 16 days. Davidson then issued the suspension order and intimated he would split another team.

Collins, former major league star, returned to his home in Pittsfield

STEEL MAST FOR WHIRLWIND

New York, June 5 (AP)—A second potential defender of the America's Cup, the Whirlwind, may appear for the test races equipped with a hollow metal mast instead of the conventional wooden spar

The first section of a duralumin mast, similar to the one which has been shipped to Bristol, R. I., for installation in the cup yacht enterprise, was landed at the City Island yards here yesterday.

Notre Dame Club Faces Strong Teams

The Roxbury Notre Dame Club will play two hard games this week-end. On Saturday afternoon they travel to Kingston to meet that Town Team. Sunday the Roxbury nine plays the Oregon Dye House team at Fort Rodman, New Bedford. The Notre Dames defeated the Tremonts of New Bedford at that city a couple of weeks ago and their slugging team should be a good attraction for the Sunday clash.

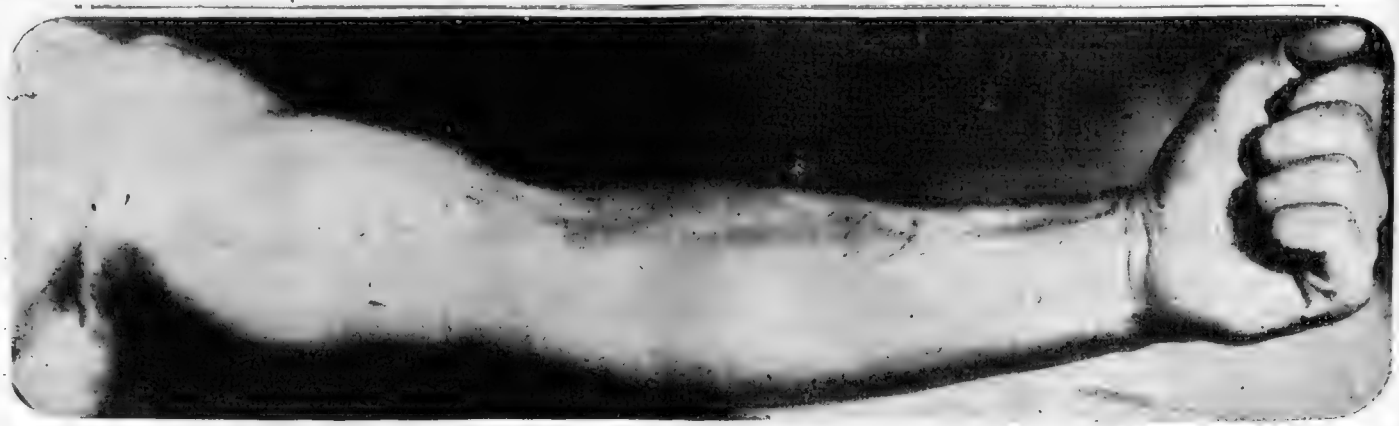
Sharkey, Confident of Victory, Looks to Next Bout

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

"WITH THIS LEFT, I WILL KNOCK OUT SCHMELING AND LIFT HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN," SAYS SHARKEY



SHARKEY, SURE OF VICTORY, LOOKS AHEAD

By JACK SHARKEY

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 5

William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, asked me the other day what I wanted him to do with me in the event I win from Max Schmeling in our 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium, New York on June 12.

Carey had a perfect right to ask such a question as I am under contract to defend the title for the Garden next year if I upset the German Dempsey.

"All I ask is that you match me with the best available challenger in the summer of 1931," I told Carey. "As soon as my bout with schmeling is over, sign up every heavyweight in the world, let them battle among themselves and you can toss me in with the survivor. It has never been the policy of Jimmy Buckley or myself to hand pick opponents.

"The fact I have battled Wills, Godfrey, Dempsey, McTigue, Stribling, Loughran, Maloney, Scott, Risko, Heeney and the rest of the big fellows bears out my statement."

And then I assured Carey:

"Another thing, Bill, I won't retire on you. I shall keep on battling as long as I am the champion. When I lose my title, it will be under fire against somebody who is a better scrapper than myself.

"This is the way John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson and Jack Dempsey passed out as headliners.

"I have always felt that Gene Tunney did the heavyweight field an injustice when he retired with his title. It would have been different if Gene couldn't get first class men to battle. He should have stuck to his guns until his title was blasted from him

Sharkey Felt He Could Beat Tunney

"I always felt I could have beaten Tunney. May be Gene held a similar opinion. Anyhow he retired without giving me a shot at him.'

"Carey appeared pleased with my statement. He apparently concluded it will be easy for him to stage a heavyweight title scrap in 1931 after I upset Schmeling.

"For the past 10 days I have been going through the most strenuous kind of training. I am rapidly getting into the best possible condition and will be able to step about a terrific clip when I oppose the German Dempsey.

Ready for 15 Rounds at Top Speed

I am training so that I shall be able to go to the full 15 rounds if necessary. I shall knock Max out with a punch if possible but, if I fail to do so, I want to be in shape to go the full 15-round route at top speed.

It is pleasing to win bouts by knockouts in the early rounds but one seldom gains such a victory if he is not in the best possible condition, and a bit lucky.

When a boxer knows he isn't in condition, he is afraid to let out in the early rounds. He is fearful of blowing up. As a result, he goes along as easily as possible and so has only a slim chance of putting over a quick haymaker.

Hall In 4th Round of Title Court Play

Hartford, Conn., June 3 (AP)—J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., defending title holder, today had overcome the stiff third round opposition of John Gow, Hartford, in the New England tennis tournament. He eliminated the local man yesterday by scores of 10—8, 6—4.

David Jones, New York Richard Murphy, Utica, N. Y., Harvard student, "Hobey" Hyde, Hartford, last year's runnerup, and Keith Wagner, Los Angeles, Cal., also advanced in the day's play.

Mrs. William Shedden, Boston 1929 women's champion, took her third round mach easily. Play got under way in both the men's and women's doubles.

that you should be given a chance——"

"Sweet Anne—but you don't know prisons——"

"He was so kind and considerate. He believes me and believes that you—he says that he will believe as your conduct convinces him."

The time seemed so short. She told him how she had been incarcerated for a month after the awful row. How Ruby had been her unremitting companion, now Lola. I told her so many nice things about him and had advised her how to act.

"John—John you look so pale—and weak," she sniffled compassionately.

"Oh, that's nothing—it is as ghastly as Ruby says."

"No, not at all," Morgan laughed, "it's not half bad—they give you angel cake and the best of water. The dieting really does you good—by some people of their own accord do worse than that by themselves."

Anne was silent a moment.

"How is Kent?" she ventured at last.

Morgan turned hard. But he smiled again with an effort to conceal his emotions.

"Oh, he's all right. He's a trusty now—in the library. He doesn't have a hard time at all. Haven't you heard from him?"

"Yes, I have received two letters—but I have not even read them. I can't bear to. I feel so——so goose-fleshy about it all."

"Don't think of it, Anne honey. If you don't love him, don't grieve over him. It wasn't your fault that he got here. He will be a different man when he gets out."

"What? How? You mean——"

"Just that he'll be older, his views on life will have changed. He will think in new veins and channels."

"I thought you meant something else."

"But, what else could I have meant?"

"Nothing." Anne bit her lip. "But, John—I can call you that can't I?—John, can't you talk to him for me—tell him the truth. I opium to him that I feel towards him as I always felt, that I want to help him but that I don't love him as I always felt, that I want will never marry him.

"I'll tell him," he agreed with slow emphasis. "Then—But how do you feel, Anne—toward me? Are you willing to sacrifice years of your life for me? In time we have lots of time to think—and feel. We can't fight for what we want. It will be hell for me if I am not sure. I am selfish.

"To dream and hope and wait that some day I will be free—and I can have you, yet to think—and fear that after all, you are not sure you want me enough to tell me out and keep yourself for a man who——"

"Oh, John, don't talk like——

Anne begged, with tears in her eyes. "I do love you and I will wait for you. I never was sure of anything, in all my life. There could be no other man.

"Oh I love you so. Anne I have nothing else—you are all secure thing—only I plead——

Raquel Says Goodbye to Farrell and Promises to Wait for Him

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojas, engaged to Bill Johnson, the richest man in the border town of Hermosa, has fallen in love with Jack Farrell, a handsome young engineer. She is about to break her engagement when she is startled to hear the banns of her marriage to Johnson read out in church. The notice has been given to the parish priest by her father Pancho, to hasten the wedding. That night Jack calls at the old ranch of the Don Je ouma Mi ue. Raquel tells him that she is to be married next day, and begs him to go. He must go behind her back, she says, as she is to go on a train headed north for Phoenix, Ariz.

CHAPTER 8

An eerie light began to press against the windows of the train in which Raquel rode. Dawn was out there behind the dark rim of the world, sending out pearl-gray scouts to clear the way for flaunting rose banners and gold guidons.

When it was quite light, she might be almost to Phoenix.

Dawn reminded her of twilight. Except that it had an upward cheery song to it, while twilight sloped downward in a mournful dirge.

It had been twilight when Jack Farrell came to her in the ruined mission of San Jeronimo, where she hid following the reading of her marriage banns. All during the long afternoon she waited for him, crouched behind a leaning slab of marble that had once been a part of the altar of the mission chapel.

The evening star winked a friendly eye at her through an opening in the roof before she heard the echo of hurrying feet.

Farrell! There was no need to reconnoiter. She knew. Out from the darkness she flitted, and stood, vibrant, expectant, before him.

"Raquita!" His arm enfolded her. Gently, then brazenly, as he felt the yield of her.

She lifted her lips. His kiss was so pungent it seemed to drain the blood from her heart and spread it hotly across her face.

He held her from him, seeking to search out her eyes in the darkness.

"Is it true, Requita," he asked hoarsely, "about you and—Johnson?"

At Crossroads
Raquel Chooses Farrell

She clung to him. Crossroads. She had come to crossroads. She must take one road or the other. Above the dusty mesa trail, burning and flat and unevenful as Johnson and such makebuilt pale loves as his money could buy for her.

A moment only she stood on the ridge, studying the roads. Then, in a flash, she threw off her past like a burdensome mantle.

"It might have been true," she said, "but—I met you."

Raquita!" He crushed her to him.

"How did you know," she asked when she could draw away from him ever so little, "about what happened in church—about the banns?"

"How did you know," she asked while darned town is ringing with them! Pancho's down at Keno Joe's buying tequila for anyone that will drink it."

It was Pancho who took them —the banns— to Father Luis Another passion replaced the one Raquel had so lately felt for Farrell. A passion of resentment against Pancho, her father.

"Johnson's forbidden me to see you again," she said "He's probably told Pancho."

"I saw Johnson making for your place as I came out," Farrell laughed. "He was togged out as if he expected the wedding to take place this evening."

"The wedding will never be," she announced.

"You mean—you'll go through with this, Raquita—you'll go away, with me?" Farrell was drawing her to him again. Persuasively. Pleadingly.

"Not with you, hombre mio," Raquel shook a reproving head. "But I will go away."

"Alone, Bonita? No. That will never do. I can't let you go, now that I know you care. You do care, don't you?"

She did not answer, but she did not deny his arms.

"Then we will go to the priest, tonight," Farrell insisted. "Surely he cannot refuse to marry us, once he knows how things are between us."

Must Be Alone
Raquel Is Afraid

"I—don't—know." Fearfully. "There is Pancho, and Johnson. Who knows what they have told Fr. Luis? After all, Pancho is my father. A Spanish father does with his womenfolk as he will, Jack. I can't risk it. If Pancho should find us—"

The terror in her voice shook him. He was quick to reason.

"Then you must leave me, and I will go with you," he said. She felt rather than saw the set of his long jaws. No, not that. They must not leave Hermosa together. That would be too sweet a dish for the vultures and the scorpions. Raquel Rojas, riding out of town with a stranger and the devil and her traveling companions. Her arms twined softly about Farrell's neck.

"Please, carito mio," she begged, her lips against his throat, "My name would then be a rag for those coyotes to tear at. Let me go, now, tonight. You come after, as soon as the coyotes sleep. Let them think I have run away from everyone. From Johnson. From you. With you here, pretending surprise, grumbling that you, too, are hurt that I should leave you so—what is it you say?—on a limb, they will gabble only that I am a foolish one, and that I am bad. I cannot hear they should say I am bad, like Lily, carita."

He kissed her lightly, on the exposed satin of her forehead. It was she knew the salute of surrender.

"But Raquita," he said, hopefully, at last, "there is no train from Hermosa."

"I will ride to Columbus Junction. There is a train before midnight. I could go on that train except—I have no money."

Reluctantly—it was taking every ounce of will at his command to let her go—he reached in his pocket, drew out a roll of bills, pressed them into her hand. Her slim fingers closed over them.

"They are a loan, hombre mio," said Raquel. "I shall repay."

"It will not be necessary, my darling," Farrell reminded her persuasively. "You will be my wife."

An hour later Pancho Rojos' piebald pony, tied to a ring in the side of Keno Joe's dance hall, felt a familiar hand smoothing along its tasseled mane.

"Quiet, caballo," whispered Raquel. "Who feeds you lumps of sugar, eh, and avacados? Now, is it not? Come now, you must serve me well. I know you will come home when I turn you loose."

"Wait for Me"
Farrell Urges Her

The pony's hoofbeats were silenced by the cushion of dust into which they thudded.

At the edge of town, in a trysting place on Johnson's ten acres by Pueblo Creek, Farrell waited. It had all been arranged between them. He lifted her from the saddle, held her as if he would never let her go. The frenzy of his lips covered her face, her hands, her throat, with the passion of their parting. One last embrace—

"Remember, Raquita mia, you are to wait for me." Clinging lips.

She was off across the desert. The wind in her hair. A chant in her heart.

"Adois, Hermosa," she flung back across her shoulder. "I put you behind me. I shall never willingly look at your ugliness again."

The train at Columbus Junction was late or Raquel would not, now, be nearing Phoenix.

Heart and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Not Worthy of You

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a fellow for about three years and have been seriously in love with him. It seems that we have meeting as he has an argument, but some evenings are wonderful. He never could hold a steady job. He seems his employers don't understand him some how. When he was out of a job I helped him to get he and a whole lot more What shall I do?

OLD FASHIONED.

Malden.

Dear Old Fashioned: To my mind your young man is quite insufferable. I think you have been patient and kind long enough. Married life—if that is what you contemplate—with such a man it would not be worth the effort to accomplish. If he is so unreasonable now, you certainly can't look for anything better after you are married.

Stop Moaning

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I was 14 I met and married my husband, 18 years my senior. When we were married a short while I could see Al was getting tired of me more and more. After being married 14 months we were blessed with a perfect baby girl. I thought Al would be better to me then, but instead things were worse. I never go anywhere, nor spend money on myself, but I really love him. Please advise me.

LOU-LOU.

Dear Lou-Lou: I think the answer to your cry is in your own words: "I never go anywhere or spend money on myself." In Heaven's name, why not? A moment only she stood on the ridge, studying the roads. Then, in a flash, she threw off her past like a burdensome mantle.

"It might have been true," she said, "but—I met you."

"How did you know," she asked when she could draw away from him ever so little, "about what happened in church—about the banns?"

"How did you know," she asked while darned town is ringing with

Not Worthy of You

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a fellow for about three years and have been seriously in love with him. It seems that we have meeting as he has an argument, but some evenings are wonderful. He never could hold a steady job. He seems his employers don't understand him some how. When he was out of a job I helped him to get he and a whole lot more What shall I do?

OLD FASHIONED.

Malden.

Dear Old Fashioned: To my mind your young man is quite insufferable. I think you have been patient and kind long enough. Married life—if that is what you contemplate—with such a man it would not be worth the effort to accomplish. If he is so unreasonable now, you certainly can't look for anything better after you are married.

Stop Moaning

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I was 14 I met and married my husband, 18 years my senior. When we were married a short while I could see Al was getting tired of me more and more. After being married 14 months we were blessed with a perfect baby girl. I thought Al would be better to me then, but instead things were worse. I never go anywhere, nor spend money on myself, but I really love him. Please advise me.

LOU-LOU.

Cut-Out Designs Edge New Frocks

By ANN ARDEN

Ann A den handicraft's latest style hints over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a m.

WHETHER YOUR frock has a jacket, a cape, plenty or three it must have an edge on. Sawtooth, perhaps, or scalloped or fringed, the edge of the neckline and sleeves may be. Other edges that are very smart are the one that is trimmed with small cut-out flowers from the print of the frock and the one trimmed with little artificial flowers of the same fabric as the dress.

THE VERY smart frock pictured is a copy of Chanel, in a most unusual print of flowers and leaves in geometric design, red and black on a white ground. One piece with tailored belt of the material, the skirt section has groups of inverted pleats each side of front and back panels. Three-quarter length sleeves, and bateau neckline are outlined in a cut-out design of the material.

THE HAT of Bengal Panama straw has a black ribbon band, and fly-away bow on right side. Of course you have noticed that new sleeves are often shrevelated—sometimes ending just above the elbow and sometimes stopping about six inches down from the shoulder.

WHETHER YOUR frock is sleeved or sleeveless, the little frock jacket that accompanies it will more often than not eachew sleeves. Sleeveless jackets frequently are worn with sport frocks that have some unusual sleeve interest. The short sleeves of a printed frock are effective appearing beneath a plain sleeveless jacket.

* * *

THE LEAF motif is gaining in importance as a fabric print design. Sometimes the leaf is conventionalized. Again it is a natural leaf that dots a dark ground, natural in form but gaily unconventional in color. There are polka dotted leaves, long leaves, flat round leaves and graceful vines of slender leaves. In fact many of the spring and summer prints would gladden the botanist's heart as well as the eye of the artist.

WHETHER OR not a new theme might be found for a print, after yards and yards of dozens that include everything from old-fashioned bouquet's to modern skyscrapers, is a question settled by the appearance of a new print in the recent Paris openings.

* * *

THIS PRINT shows little sailboats bounding merrily over the most rudimentary waves. The boats themselves are no more than triangles, but they have the look of sailboats. The print is pie turned in black and white on a sky-blue background and has an effect of breezy gaiety.

How to Keep Well -:- By Dr. R. S. Copeland

Water—Inside and Out

Too few people realize the importance of drinking plenty of water. This is very much a matter of habit, and it is an exceedingly simple that we forget it, and overlook it.

Dr. Copeland

Probably the most common trouble of mankind today is constipation. The intestines need flushing out with water taken as a daily beverage and they can not work properly without it.

Water is the most important constituent of the body. The weight of the body is made up of seven-tenths water. That is, if you weigh one hundred pounds, seventy pounds of that weight is water.

Water is the basis of every fluid in the body, as well as forming part of all the tissues. Water in the form of perspiration is being given off from the body at all times. In the blood and gastric juices it acts still further to supply body needs.

An adult needs to drink as much as six glasfuls of water every day, and a child a little less. Some of it, of course, is taken in other drinks of various kinds and in foods, but an adequate supply cannot be gotten in this manner. Every wise way made you into a very tiny rabbit and they are regular sized camels!"

"Well then, what shall we do?" Alfred asked. "They're getting closer every minute — and just you're going? Who do you think you standing here doesn't put any sugar are? Do you own this desert?" he in the sugar?"

"Yes, Tom," said David, in a very scared voice, "What shall we do?"

And Lorraine said, "I'm afraid!"

And Tillie said, "So am I!"

"What good does that do?" Tom asked. "I don't think they'll hurt us. The camels in the zoo at Teddy Town are very nice and gentle."

"I wish we hadn't come!" wailed Lorraine.

"So do I!" cried David, "I wish my mother was here!"

"Well," said Tom, "We'll soon know what's going to happen, because they're almost here."

And Tom was right.

The camels were so close that the children could hear their heavy feet up stamping in the sand as they trotted.

On they came, closer and closer.

They didn't seem to see the children and Alfred. And they were coming straight toward them! It looked as if they were going to run right over them!

As they got right up to where Lorraine and David and Tom and Tillie and Alfred were standing, the first camel lifted his huge foot and was just about to put it down on them when the children and Alfred all yelled at the tops of their voices.

David shouted, "Look out!"

Tom yelled, "Watch where you're going!"

Lorraine and Tillie screamed!

And Alfred, in his little, high voice shouted, "Don't you step on me!"

And just in time, just before he stepped on them, the first camel stopped. He stopped so suddenly and watched the five great animals that he was coming toward them over the sand at a brisk trot. You remember about the animals, don't you?

"My!" exclaimed Lorraine, "Aren't they whoppers!"

"No!" said Tom Teddy. "They're not whoppers. I know what they are. They're camels. Don't you see father looks when he has to stop the humps on their backs! I've seen lots of camels just like them in the zoo at Teddy Town—only a hundred times smaller, of course."

"I'm going to run!" cried Alfred, making for the rabbit, in alarm.

"Fiddlesticks!" said Tom, "and so are you. You couldn't run as fast as they can really, because we Alfred asked, "They're getting standing here doesn't put any sugar

"Why don't you watch where

"Good gracious, you gave me a start!" said the camel, "I didn't see you there!"

"Now," he continued, "I'll answer your questions:

"You asked why we don't watch where we're going. Well we do watch where we're going. Only we don't watch down off the sand. We watch up in front of us so as not to bump our noses into the trees. You see, our noses are very tender."

"But there aren't any trees on the desert," said Tom Teddy.

"No," answered the camel, "but there might be some. You can never tell where they'll grow, so we watch just in case there should be any trees."

"Then you asked who I think I am," the camel went on:

"Well, I think I am Ebenezer Camel. In fact I'm sure I am. And these," he said, nodding toward the other four camels, "are my wives, Patience, Prudence, Constance and Mehitabel."

"Then you wanted to know if I owned this desert."

"Why, yes! Of course I do!"

"Does that answer all of your questions?" asked the camel

"Yes," said Alfred, "I guess it does."

"Well, then," said Ebenezer, "it's my turn to ask questions. Who are you?"

"My name is Tom Teddy," said Tom.

"And my name is Tillie Teddy," said Tillie.

"I'm Lorraine," said Lorraine.

"I'm David," said David.

"I'm Alfred," said Alfred, the rabbit.

"Yes," said Ebenezer Camel, "I suppose you are."

"I'm the inventor of the Teddy Bridge," said Alfred, puffing out his little chest.

"Oh, is that so?" exclaimed Ebenezer, "Well, I am very proud to meet you all."

Then he grew very serious. He looked at each of the children in turn. And from none of them.

"What I want to know is," he said, "What are you doing out here in my desert? Answer me that!"

"Of course I will," said Tom. "We are on our way to Teddy Town, and this is the shortest way to go."

"Teddy Town?" cried Ebenezer, "You've got a long way to go! Why, you're not half way across my desert yet."

"No," said Tom, "but we'll get there all right. Just give us time."

"You can take all the time you want," said Ebenezer, "but it will be very slow going. And you might meet a sand storm. Had you thought of that?"

"Well — no-o — " said Tom, "we hadn't."

"You'd better let me and my wives ride you the rest of the way across the desert on our backs," said Ebenezer. Then he turned to his wives and asked, "What do you say, girls?"

Patience and Prudence and Constance and Mehitabel all nodded their heads and made a funny noise like the noise you may have heard camels make at the circus.

"They mean, 'yes,'" Ebenezer explained. "They can't talk. I never let them learn, I thought it was better that way because, you see, of the Camel word talk, at least one of them would be talking all the time—and I'd get tired listening to them—even if I didn't pay any attention to what they said. Anyway," said Ebenezer, "they mean 'yes.'"

"That is very nice of them," said Lorraine.

"But," David said, "you're all so awfully big—how can we ever get up on your backs?"

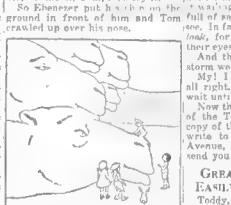
"Oh," said Ebenezer, "we'll kneel down." And he and his wives all knelt down.

"That doesn't help any," said Tillie. "You're still so high that we can't possibly get on."

"I know!" David exclaimed. "You stand your new wives out in front of you and put your shins on the ground. Then we can walk up over your noses. And between your ears. And right up your necks onto your backs."

"That's a good idea," said Ebenezer, "Come on, Tom, let's try it."

So Ebenezer put his shins on the ground in front of him and Tom crawled up over his nose.



Ebenezer burst out laughing.

"Ouch!" he said. "That tickles!"

"Don't laugh so!" cried Tom. "You'll shake me off."

"All right," said Ebenezer. And, when Tom had crawled clear up on top of his hump, Ebenezer said, but their chins down on the ground.

"Now you can go, Lorraine," said Tom. "Tillie, you ride on Patience, You ride on Constance, David. And Alfred can ride on Mehitabel."

When the children and Alfred were all perched on the camels' backs they started off at a fast trot across the desert in the direction of Teddy Town.

"Isn't this fun?" cried Lorraine

"Just look how fast they're going!" said Tom, "and they aren't going so fast for them. If they weren't so fast up here beside we are so small. They could go much faster than this."

"I don't want them to," cried Alfred, "If Mehitabel went any faster than this I couldn't stay on."

"Don't worry, Alfred," said Ebenezer, "We won't go any faster than this. There's no use tiring yourself out when you don't—" but then he interrupted himself. He said:

"Look! Look! What did I tell you? Here comes a sand storm! I could be in a nice fix if we weren't with you!"

And the camels all stopped and turned around and knelt down with their tails toward the sand storm, which was approaching very rapidly.

"Slide off our backs!" shouted Ebenezer. "Then run around and snuggle down between our front legs. Hurry! Hurry!

So that's what Lorraine and David and Tom and Tillie and Alfred did.

And the wind began to blow harder and harder. It really did blow! It was so full of sand that the children couldn't see. In fact, they didn't even dare to look, for fear of getting sand in their eyes.

And there, in that terrible sand storm we'll have to leave them.

My! I hope they'll get through it all right. Well, we'll just have to wait until next week to see.

GREAT FOOD VALUE IN EASILY DIGESTIBLE FORM

Toddy, as you know is the delicious malt chocolate food-drink that everybody calls "a meal in a glass." The reason is that Toddy contains so much food value that a single glass of creamy, foamy Toddy made with milk is equal to a pound of steak or six eggs or a pound of chicken or 20 ounces of oatmeal.

And because Toddy contains an abundance of healthful body-building vitamins it helps digestion. In other words, it offers its nourishment in the most easily assimilated form.

For that reason it is an ideal food for a child during the warm summer months as it has a delicious beverage for both children and grown-ups.

You'll never know how good it is, however, until you begin to drink all the milk you can, and put a two or three teaspoons of Toddy in each glass of milk. Get Toddy at your grocer's today.

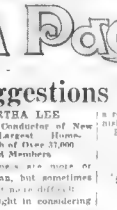
Suggestions for Company Suppers

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Home-Makers Club of Over 37,000 Enrolled Members

Company dinners are more or less easy to plan, but sometimes suppers are a bit more difficult.

The first thought in considering what we'll serve is what can be repeated ahead of time and left ready for later use for the meal or the next day. Salads and salad dressings, cream cakes, molded fish salads, and delicious wishes that can be made and ready the last minute, cooked meats and fruit desserts all lend themselves to easy company supper.



Martha Lee

Here are three company supper-planned for easy summer cooking.

EVENING AMERICAN MARKETS

New York Stocks — News of Street

TRADING AGAIN IS VERY DULL IN WALL ST.

New York, June 5—Trading again very dull today on the New York Stock Exchange.

The cut in [illegible] 1915, accompanied [illegible] of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to [illegible] tion by the New York Federal Reserve Bank [illegible] emphasized the [illegible] used credit at the [illegible]

BEARS START SELLING

Professional traders [illegible] their exploitation [illegible] prices one way or the other and found it [illegible] to more effective. Heavy selling in substantial volume for a time and losses of [illegible] were common among the pivotal shares.

Interest [illegible] abundant credit and the possibility of a reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate were interpreted favorably, in sharp contrast to the construction placed upon similar developments in March.

Bankers' acceptance rates were cut to 2¼ to 2⅜ per cent for the shorter maturities, the lowest in six years.

These rates are far out of line with the rediscount rate of 3½ per cent, and would seem to suggest a downward revision. The Bank of England made no change in its 3 per cent rate, however, and a reduction of the New York rate to a level lower than that of London would be a [illegible] policy.

While the reductions in bank acceptance rates were undoubtedly in expectation of the temporary easiness shown during the quarterly treasury financing, during the next fortnight, they apparently have been encouraged by the reserve authorities, in view of the reduction of the reserve buying rate on Tuesday.

TONIC FOR BUSINESS

The bearishly inclined stated that such drastic slashing of money rates would seem to indicate that bankers believe business is in need of an extraordinarily strong tonic, and that flotation of the [illegible] tions loan may require considerable artificial assistance. The New York Federal Reserve rate is now as low as it has been since the Reserve System was inaugurated.

Goodyear cut its tire prices about 5 per cent, emphasizing the downward movement [illegible] prices, and General Motors declared that the regular dividend failing to order an extra as was done at this time in each of the three preceding years.

Stocks were sold in occasional blocks of 5000 to 10,000 shares, indicating large scale bear operations, but the market remained a professional trader's affair [illegible]

Some of the high priced shares broke sharply, such as Case, Auburn, Case, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak, Worthington and Columbia Carbon losing 5 to more than 10 points.

Execution of stop-loss orders un covered by bear raids carved many industrial and specialties 5 to 10 points under the previous close during the [illegible] hour. U S Steel, Radio, American Can and General Electric were among the leaders losing 3 to 4 points. J. I Case was off over 13. Auburn Auto and Worthington Pump 10 and American Power & Light, Eastman Kodak and Columbian Carbon about 6. The [illegible] was heavy.

NEW LOWS SET FOR RUBBER

New York, June 5—New lows were set for rubber futures in today's trading on the [illegible]

Prices: July, 12.70; September, 13.10; December 13.50. New crop [illegible] July 13.30 AM (1) September 13.70 December, 13.85.

The Rubber Manufacturers Association states [illegible] reliable reports [illegible] the East indicate a production of 30,000 tons in the probable reproduction of crude rubber during 1930 as a result of the May tapping holiday.

But with world visible stocks reported as sufficient to supply world consumption requirements for about six months, it would appear that the May experiment has not done a great deal for the industry.

RUSH TO NEW DISCOVERY

Wrangell, Alaska, June 5—Lured by the discovery of ore believed to contain copper, gold and silver, worth nearly $60 a ton, prospectors are rushing to the Canadian border 100 miles up the Stikine river, in northern British Columbia.

The discovery was made by George Drapich [illegible] Yukon miner, on the eastern bank of [illegible] stream near the village of Glenora. Early arrivals in the district already have staked 32 claims.

One of the veins is about 20 feet wide, reports received here said. Samples brought down by Drapich ran $40.65 in copper, $2.20 in gold and indicated a silver content of about five ounces to the ton.

Dividend on Hahn

Hahn Department Stores, Inc declared regular quarterly preferred dividend of $1.62½ per share payable July 1 to stock of record June 21.

NEWS OF New York Curb BOSTON Trends of the Day MARKETS

PRICES LOWER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were worked to lower levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Early trading irregularity changed to spottiness later in the day when prices were quoted from 1 to 8 points below Wednesday's close.

General Electric dropped almost 8 points. Stone & Webster dipped 2¾. Edison was 1¾ lower. Quincy Mining 1¼, Cities Service 1. American Telephone 1¼ and American Copper over 2.

First National Stores gained 1½. Utilities Equities preferred added 4 point and Torrington was a fraction higher. Crown Cork International Corp. was up 1¼. Gillette and Venezuela Mexican were each down a point or more.

Fractional losses were shown by American Founders, United Founders, United Fruit and Bigelow Sanford.

Officials of Warren Brothers Co. are authority for the statement that earnings so far this calendar year have exceeded those for the corresponding period of 1929.

This well-known road-building concern, under agreement with the New York Stock Exchange, makes public an earnings report for eight months to Aug. 31 in addition to the annual report. It does not make reports quarterly. A year ago, however, it was calculated on the basis of official information that first quarter earnings were approximately $583,000 - after deducting United States income- and Cuban profit taxes. This was equivalent to $3.34 a share on the common after allowance for preferred dividends.

As the stock has since been split three for one and as earnings are running ahead of a year ago it seems safe to estimate that Warren Brothers earned upwards of $1.10 a share in the first quarter of 1930 on the 470,889 shares of common at present outstanding.

In connection with the first quarter earnings it should be borne in mind that this is not usually the best quarter of the year. For example, while earnings were about $3.34 a share on the common in the initial three months' period of 1929, the company wound up the year with net equal to $18.17 a share. Domestic construction is running about on a par with last year, but aggregate foreign awards are well ahead of a year ago.

"Potential business," according to President Gow, "seems almost unlimited."

Old Colony Railroad Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 payable July 1 to stock of record June 14.

General Electric Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of 40 cents per share on common and 15 cents on the special stock, both payable July 25 to stock of record June 20.

Katanga Threatens to End Copper Pact

American Metal Market quotes Berliner Zeitung as saying Union Miniere du Haut Katanga intends to withdraw from its agreement with Copper Exporters, Inc., at the beginning of 1931 unless the latter succeeds within the next six months in restoring stability to the copper market.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. All replies are sent by mail direct.

NOT ENOUGH

Miss L. R., Boston—I am self-supporting and have saved $1000, which I want to invest. Please suggest a good stock.

Ans.—Keep the money in the savings bank. You wouldn't materially increase your income by investing $1000 in a standard stock. Don't consider buying securities until you have $3000 or so. Save something regularly and write to us again.

STOCKS FOR INCOME

J. G., Lowell—I have $6000 in a savings bank. I want to buy stocks which can be sold in the fall at a profit.

Ans.—Advice based on guesswork is useless. No one knows what prices stocks may command tomorrow, a week or a year hence. All can guess. You could get a comfortable income on your fund. For a little more speculation you can buy ten shares each Electric Power & Light first preferred, $6 Kansas & Texas preferred, St. Louis-San Francisco preferred and Illinois Power & Light $6 preferred; annual income $260. This plan leaves over $600 for the savings bank.

FIVE PER CENT

E., Brookline—I am a reader of your paper and want advice. What is your think of a purchase of Adams Express?

Ans.—Adams Express operates as a holding company, controlling Railway & Express and Stagecart Corporation. Funded debt is close to $10,000,000; capitalization, $8,554,376 five per cent cumulative preferred and 1,815,148 common shares. Earnings in 1929 were $1,296,752. This figure is of little value for purposes of comparison. Dividends of $6 a share annually were paid on the old common stock from fourth quarter of 1923. The annual rate on the present stock is $1.50 a share. At recent levels the yield was 9 per cent.

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 5 (INS)—Grains closed higher today, rallying from early low points, on active buying and short covering. Wheat led the upward movement on support that was believed influenced by a private report that indicated European crops would be about 25 per cent lighter than a year ago.

Closing prices for wheat were up ½ to 1c, corn ¼ to 1½c and oats ⅛ to ½c. Rye advanced ½ to 1½c.

U. S. PROGRESS IS NATURAL, SAYS FORBES

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 5—It is refreshing to encounter a man who sees beyond the present business clouds and who is resolutely planning for bigger developments than ever before.

B. C. Forbes

The rest of the country probably has only a scant idea of how rife is pessimism in these days in the country's financial metropolis, especially in the Wall st. section. After a long series of 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 up to 16,000,000 share days on the New York stock exchange, Wall st. houses fret and fume over days which fail to register transactions of even 2,000,000 shares. We so quickly forget. The writer vividly recalls when a "million-share day" was front page news. Doubtless the current lack of activity partly accounts for the pessimism now prevailing.

Read these inspiring expressions by Thomas N. McCarter, president of Public Service and Allied Companies, providing New Jersey with its utility facilities:

"The United States were created and have been developed by optimists whose vision, aspirations and confidence have been justified by results. The trend in this country is today, as it has always been, toward further progress and greater prosperity. Such setbacks in the mounting expansion of prosperity as have occurred in the past have been temporary and their causes have soon been overcome.

"No business man who hopes for success can afford to base his plans upon anything but the promise that the growth and prosperity of the country are bound to continue indefinitely, in spite of more or less serious retrogression that may from time to time occur.

"American business is, in my opinion, strong enough and resilient enough to absorb such shocks as it must inevitably receive during periods of business depression which, until we know more about business economics, are bound to come occasionally, so that the important thing at the present moment is to realize that the onward movement will continue and that with the passing of the temporary slowing down, its pace will be accelerated.

"Electric and gas utilities are, I am confident, in a sound position. Their services are essential, the demand for them is growing, and such serious problems as they have to do with artificial restraints and rules of conduct rather than with those basic questions of supply and demand which are the cause of difficulty in other industries.

"The problems of the local transportation industry involve not only these questions of regulation but are interwoven with economic conditions that make them much more difficult. This industry is just as essential to the well-being and development of the country as a whole as are the electric and gas industries.

"These norms to be an unwillingness on the part of the public to pay the fair cost of this service. This attitude must be changed if the industry is to live."

The United States need to draw people from every corner of the earth but send out none of its own. The growth of our international trade, and especially the development of American-owned enterprises in other lands, has changed that. Colonies of Americans have sprung up in many parts of the world.

Complaint is sometimes made that aliens living here get together and maintain many of their native habits. Americans abroad usually find their own fellow-countrymen the most congenial. It is surprising how few Americans it takes to organize an American club and other American institutions. Take Shanghai. That Chinese city has an American school attended by 500 boys and girls of families of American business men, professional men, missionaries, etc. The existence of this school has made many representatives of American institutions in the Far East more content with their lot, and has thus greatly cut down turnover.

It is Wall Street tradition that a very dull stock market that doesn't go down will in time start to go up.

GAS PIPE LINE BUYING AIDS INDUSTRY

The heavy buying in steel pipe for natural gas pipe lines is becoming one of the important factors in trade revival, according to James C. Willson, director of Petroleum Corporation of America.

Mr. Willson says:

"The petroleum and gas industry is actually well in the lead among those groups stimulating trade revival. Within the industry itself, there has never been such firm confirmation in controlling output so as to reduce storage stocks of crude oil. This has already resulted in firmer prices for gasoline.

"But the really spectacular development has been in the harnessing of natural gas resources. Pipe lines are pushing forward all over the country.

"Factories are being saved millions of dollars in fuel cost, and in the huge contracts for pipe lines, from 300 to 2250 miles in length, the oil and gas interests are taking up enough steel tonnage to make this the conspicuously active year of the present steel market. When the history of the 1930 revival is written, the part played by the oil and gas industry will be of large proportions."

Savings Banks Barometers of Prosperity

It has been truly said that the savings banks are the most accurate and reliable barometer of the material welfare of the people.

That being the case, as it is, the people of Massachusetts are to be congratulated and commended for the extraordinary conditions found in this State.

Measured by the assets of their savings banks and by their own deposits, the people of Massachusetts are the wealthiest in the United States.

Their savings banks near the close of 1929, for which the latest official statistics have been compiled, had accumulated assets of two and one-quarter billions of dollars.

They contained, entirely out of proportion to the population and size of the State, twenty-two per cent of all the assets of all the mutual savings banks within the United States.

In five years the average per capita deposit of the people of this State had expanded from $390.25 to $690.37, an increase undoubtedly more substantial than had fallen to the good fortune of any other people.

In any event, a survey completed by the American Bankers' Association credited Massachusetts with the highest per capita savings deposits of any State in the Union, and, therefore, in the world.

And the surplus accounts and funds of the banks, despite the paying of steadily increased dividends, had grown until they amounted to eight and one-half per cent of the total deposits, indicating a solidarity probably not to be found elsewhere.

In conjunction with their industry, the thrift of a people is their most important economic asset.

Thrift is not penury or miserly hoarding. It is the reasonable saving after the necessities and conveniences of modern life have been accommodated.

And in this connection, it can be stated from the records that larger loanings from the savings of the people have been made to real estate and to industry than ever before. Thus, the savings of the people have accrued doubly to themselves—First, in the immediate dividends which their savings have earned; secondly, in the development of homes and business, thereby providing security and employment.

The figures quoted herein were taken from the official records of the State Commissioner of Banks. Ordinarily, they would be interesting and inspiring. But they take on a significant importance at a time when the alarums of alarmists and pessimists would impair public morale by insinuating that Massachusetts had entered a period of decadence. The records disprove that. They prove, to the contrary, that Massachusetts holds the enviable position of leadership in the United States.

Let us have faith in Massachusetts! We have such good reason for it.

OUR SAVINGS BANK RECORDS

These records from the office of the State Commissioner of Banks show the enormous gains made in the assets of the savings banks of Massachusetts during the past five years:

Year.	Assets.	Increase for year.	Percentage of increase.
1925	$1,776,524,706.89	$108,922,472.24	6.53
1926	1,879,332,985.02	102,808,278.13	5.79
1927	2,021,696,769.64	142,363,784.62	7.58
1928	2,168,548,458.41	146,851,688.77	7.26
*1929	2,244,710,666.86	76,162,208.45	3.51

*Note—The savings deposits of the people of Massachusetts increased $58,796,456 last year as against a reported loss in all other sections of the country.

Every Promise Broken

McKellar Tells Treaty Truths

Senator McKellar of Tennessee performs a timely public service in recalling to the mind of the American people the roseate assurances about the London naval treaty which President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald broadcast from the banks of the Rapidan.

These assurances were that the United States and Great Britain had reached an agreement:

1—To limit naval armaments.

2—To reduce naval armaments.

3—By this limitation and this reduction to bring about great savings to the American taxpayers and to the taxpayers of other countries.

4—To equate the American with the British navy—parity for the American navy, "heaped up and flowing over," were the honeyed words Mr. MacDonald used.

Now comes the London naval treaty WHICH FAILS TO FULFILL A SINGLE ONE OF THESE PROMISES.

Says Senator McKellar, speaking, we hope, not only for himself but for all senators who refuse to be stampeded into ratifying any treaty upon orders from the White House:

"There has been no limitation of arms at all, except that the United States has been prohibited, if the agreement goes into effect, from building the kind of cruisers that her experts say are necessary for her defense.

"There has been no reduction in naval arms, but, on the contrary, there will be a vast increase in naval arms after the pact is approved.

"Instead of there being savings, the lowest estimate of additional cost to the American people is over a billion dollars.

"Instead of there being parity, to a layman it looks as if this treaty will very greatly accentuate the' disparity that now exists. It will he extremely doubtful whether we will have a navy sufficient to protect our Pacific interests."

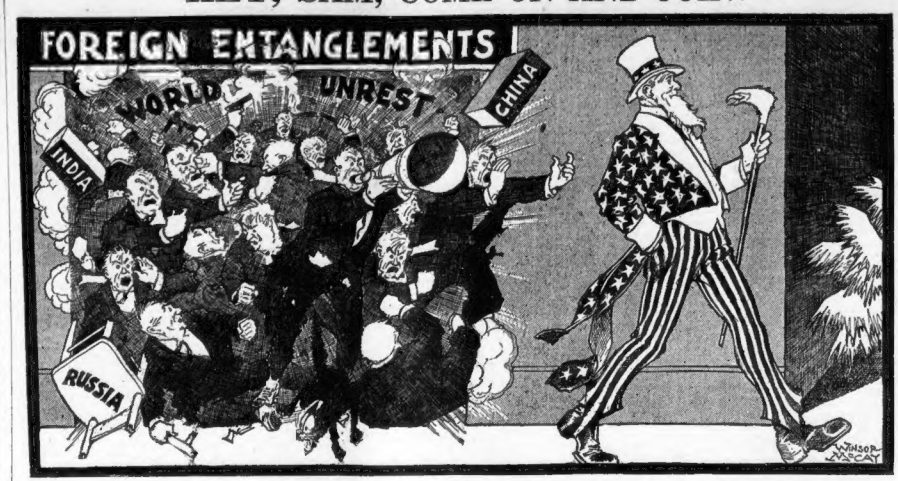
The truth of every charge brought against this "pact at any price" is fully corroborated by the testimony taken at the Senate hearings held by the committees on foreign relations and naval affairs.

And in the light of the truth about the treaty, which is just beginning to get to the ears of the American people, it is fatuous for the administration to pretend that the ratification of such an engagement will promote good feeling in this country toward Great Britain and Japan.

Why should it? Why should the United States rejoice to see its sea policy since the days of President Washington, and its established naval program for the last nine years, and the 5-5-3 ratio which it bought at an exorbitant price at the Washington conference, and the whole historic American position maintained at Geneva by President Coolidge sent to the scrap heap?

Only League of Nations extremists could welcome such a prospect and they are far from being a majority of the American people, as the Hoover administration is sure to find out before it is many months older.

"HEY, SAM, COME ON AND JOIN!"



If YOU got that invitation, what would you say?
You'd say exactly what Uncle Sam has said up to date.
If he ever got into that Foreign Entanglements "peace" club, he knows what it would be like.

It would repeat the experience of the young honeymoon couple that went to a "delightful night club" to find one gang shooting up another, and the police breaking in.

The artist tried to exaggerate this picture, tried to show conditions in the lovely "peace" club worse than they are. He COULDN'T DO IT. You can paint the lily, you can gild refined gold, but you couldn't imagine things worse for Uncle Sam than they would be if he got into that mess.

North China is fighting South China. India is trying to fight John Bull but chiefly fighting herself, Hindu against Mohammedan.

Poland and Russia have chips on their shoulders, and if THAT war happened, Poland would need her huge standing army and help from Western Europe.

Let us pray that this old gentleman, with the stars on his hat, and the long coat tails, may continue wise enough to keep out of the mess into which Europe is inviting him, a mess into which some of his American friends, that ought to know better, are trying to push him.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

The reproductive value of plant cells is evidently diminished by this process which halves their number; but it has another compensating purpose, for the members of conjugating pairs are usually from different parents, and so it affords a method for the actual blending of living material from different stocks.

H. G. Wells

From these lowly plants we can trace a series of stages leading up to the state of affairs that is found in ourselves. In all the higher animals and plants the essence of the process is the same—the reproductive cells have to melt together before they can give rise to new individuals.

One complication is that the generative cells which thus unite in pairs are usually of two kinds—active smaller male gametes or sperm-cells and passive larger female gametes or egg-cells.

There is every graduation in this inequality. We may have quite equal cells conjugating or we may find very considerable inequality in the size of the conjugating cells. Thus in the simplest phase of the sexual process there are neither male nor female; there is a sexual process without distinction of sex.

But as a further development of the appearance of the differentiation of the conjugating elements into larger and smaller there presently appears a differentiation of the parent bodies into those producing active and those producing larger conjugating cells. These are the incipient phases of sexual differentiation

In the lower animals and in plants sexual reproduction exists, as we have seen, as an alternative method to asexual, but in the vertebrate reproduction is exclusively sex-ridden. Before we can produce new individuals there has to be this actual blending of the substance of two parents.

Even in our own species this is plainly an anti-reproductive thing, for if we could proliferate asexually it would take only one to do what now needs two, and we could multiply twice as fast.

Thus in the course of Evolution the two originally distinct and antagonistic processes have come together and become inseparably blended.

Evidently there is a riddle here, and one of very profound importance. There must be something very important about this sexual process, this mixing of the stuff of different stocks.

What it is we shall presently discover, when the basal principles of heredity have been set forth.

SECTION FOUR

The Gametes, or Marrying Cells

In such great animals as we are there is a rhythm in the life-history, an alternation between two phases.

First there is the human body that we know as a familiar fact of every day.

Then, proliferated inside the body, are the gametes, that is to say, the sperms and eggs which are to unite in pairs to form new people.

The proliferation of the gametes is our method of multiplying; their subsequent union is the anti-reproductive process which, as we have just seen, is here entangled with propagation.

In many other animals the independence of the gametes is more obvious than it is in ourselves. They are almost like a separate generation, alternating with the principal body-phase as the various phases of the liverfluke alternate.

In many marine invertebrates the sperms and eggs are spawned in vast misty clouds into the sea, where the sperms swim about and unite with the eggs in a perfectly independent manner.

The Roots of All Evil

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

It is a terrific strain to watch $250,000,000 in gold being moved in the streets and not be able to do anything about it.

We watched it the other day and stood there helpless with a pair of loaded dice in our pockets.

The golden building material was taken for a spin from one bank to another. Folks, when you lamp that much money in one lumpy merger, you can feel your eyes turning green with the purest of emerald envy.

You get growing pains in your pocket, a certified chill runs up your spine like a monkey on a grapevine and your mouth becomes as dry as a safety deposit vault.

That's the way we felt. And others in the morbid huddle felt the same. And the bank officials realize that is the way everybody feels because they, too, know what it is to have loved and crashed.

So they take as many precautions as the Turk within his guarded tent. Nobody is going to play marbles with their sparkling nuggets.

Augmenting the guards were 50 robust, corn-fed and corn-footed policemen, chosen for their owl-like ability to swing nightsticks in the daytime.

If you dropped a dime at that moment you had to let it go. It was dangerous to look for it.

The money was swung along from hand to hand. As official scorer we were looking for a fumble. But nothing happened and the happy harvest is now in its new barn. But it ain't hay.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Will You Go Insane?

Will you go insane before you die? Or, at least, become extremely peculiar?

No—don't snort! That's no idle question. Mental disorder is no longer confined to an unfortunate few—it has become one of our commonest calamities. And your chances for continued sanity are much slimmer than you think.

Elsie Robinson

Every other bed in United States hospitals is occupied by a mental case! In 1880 we had only 63 mental cases for every 100,000 people. If we increase at our present rate, there will shortly be 635 insane people for every 100,000 sane. These figures are not sensational guesswork. They are part of the amazing report recently rendered in the First International Congress on Mental Hygiene assembled in Washington, D. C.

How come this horror? Through the speed, congestion and tense competition of our modern life. Too much hurry. Too much worry. Too many sights and sounds and impressions pressing on our eyes and ears, our brain and nerve centers. You don't have to be born crazy. . . . You can get that way.

* * *

Take your flashlight. Press it incessantly. How long before that light dims, burns out? Not long. That's what happens to people when life presses too incessantly on them. Gradually they cease to register impressions. Or erect strange mental defenses. Or find strange mental escapes. At first they seem just "notions." Laughable notions—lirescume notions—irritating notions. But gradually these notions deepen, harden, become actual mental impediments. Then we call these notional people "nuts" and clap them in asylums if they become too troublesome.

But all "nuts" can't be clapped in asylums—and they constitute a spreading menace.

"Mental disorders are contagious," says Prof. Henri Laugier of the Sorbonne. "Those who lead busy lives in great congested districts, who lead busy lives in great commercial centers, are in grave danger. If 500 normal persons were to be exposed in crowded quarters to five victims of mental diseases, the effects of those five abnormal persons would be felt by every one of the normal 500."

* * *

Sick minds are one of the prices we pay for our imperfect modern civilization. And we should all know of that menace. But fortunately we can create health for our minds as well as for our bodies. If you don't want to go insane play some—rest some—circulate moderately. Don't let yourself run away from people morbidly—or seek them feverishly. Keep your mind open to new thoughts and your life open to new experiences. Don't let your mind harden into peculiar attitudes. Don't grow grudges. Don't harbor fears. Above all, have some interesting work. If your regular job isn't interesting—find some work on the side that is. Cultivate a stimulating hobby. Happy work will keep almost any life in sane balance.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, June 5—Stage mothers are more often than not targets for abusive sarcasm and comic paper hoots. Producers profess to abhor them and yet the record of stage mothers is largely one of unusual sacrifice and deprivation. Their devotion has studded the theatrical heavens with stars.

There are many who have gone without clothing, food and other necessities to be certain their ducklings have dancing and dramatic tuition. No phase of poverty has been too great for them to endure. And with success they are perfectly content to remain in the background.

The mother of the Eatons—Mary, Doris, Pearl and Charles—is an example. She faced many managerial rebuffs to give her four children a place in the spotlight. Another famous stage mother is Mrs. Janis, mother of the talented Elsie. Wherever her daughter appears, she is usually in the wings.

Their singular devotion is an epic of the footlights. Miss Janis declines social engagements that do not include her mother. They have toured the world together many times and only illness has prevented Mrs. Janis from missing a single performance.

Allene Stone, Fred's wife, and mother of Dorothy and Paula, has consecrated her life to her daughters. When Dorothy was co-starring with Will Rogers Mrs. Stone did not miss a night sitting up at her Forest Hills home to await her daughter and provide a midnight snack.

The mother of The Four Marxes believed in her sons when agencies were indifferent. She literally lived on crusts while they knocked about one-night stands. It was her indomitable courage alone that kept their feet firmly on the road to success.

While these are conspicuous instances, the list of others who have made a supreme sacrifice is long. In my mail one day was a note from a stage mother that was typical and read: "I saw my daughter's name in lights tonight. Tomorrow I go to a hospital for a grave operation—deliriously happy."

Dorothea Antel is carrying on with her Sunshine Shoppe in the 70's. Confined to a bed for seven years as the result of a stage accident she has made her living catering to professional folk with her line of feminine dainties.

* * *

This column today seems somewhat a saga of stage folk. It is written at a time when thousands of professionals are "at liberty" and facing an economic uncertainty they never knew before. Many are in want. Of all people those of the stage are less given to bitterness in disaster. They may strut preposterously, mouth outlandish boasts and otherwise indulge a peacock flair for display—but they seldom whine. And what a world this would be with no whiners!

* * *

A letter—and the most aristocratic hand-writing I ever saw—from a valet says he has just been discharged because he did not keep his master's collection of pocket lighters filled with gasolene.

"He had 20," he says, "and just happened to pick up the one that was empty."

They were discussing the season's dramatic lines with the biggest emotional choke. My vote goes to one in "Journey's End." The scene is a dugout in the hell and muck of No Man's Land where a war weary group awaits the zero hour. A dull-witted sergeant, apropos of nothing whatever, remarks: "I seen a robin this morning—singing."

* * *

The famous Bourgereau painting which hung so long over the old Hoffman House bar has been sold in an Oklahoma millionaire. Maxfield Parrish's "Old King Cole" which similarly graced the Knickerbocker, has been reported in many places, but an art critic tells me it is displayed on the walls of the Racquet Club.

Speaking of bars, we often wonder what became of the silent uncommunicative fellow who stood at the end of the bar at night. He drank from six to eight highballs at a stretch and walked out cold sober. Every saloon had its mystery man.
